5 HURT AS COAL MINERS IN OHIO RIOT IN STRIKE

DYNAMITE TRESTLE AND FIRE UPON CARS

Governor Threatens to Send Troops to Protect Men Who Want to Work.

Athens, Ohio, March 20 (A.P.).—A strike of approximately 7,000 coal miners in the Hocking Valley bituminous field reached a crisis today after a night of disorders in which a shot was fired, five men were injured, one seriously and a railroad trestle was dynamited.

Hundreds of striking miners gathered at Millfield, near here, tonight, several hours after Gov. George White threatened the use of Ohio National Guardsmen to prevent a recurrence of the disorders.

The assemblage followed a mass meeting at the village this afternoon at which speakers cautioned against violence during the strike involving some 7,000 men. Several telephone lines into the village were reported to have been cut, but the operator at Chauncey, nearby, said she was in communication with Millfield. The telephone operator added that the gathering was peaceful.

Five Hurt by Stones.

The five men hurt last night, all mine officials, were stoned by pickets who stopped several automobiles and sent a bullet whizzing through one of them. First reports were that the bullet struck Andrew Chute, but it was learned later he was struck by a brick.

The disorders, climaxing a series of similar incidents which have occurred spasmodically since the strike began February 1, brought from Gov. White an announcement that he would order the Ohio National Guard into the field to maintain order unless violence ceased.

The miners, already dissatisfied because of the refusal of the operators to recognize the United Mine Workers of America, walked out when a uniform wage scale was put into effect. The scale, which the miners said meant a 25 per cent wage cut, is $3 a day for laborers and 35 cents a ton for loaders.

Last night's disorders resulted from reports that two mines would be reopened tomorrow. Fearing possible loss of life and damage to property, Adjt. Gen. Frank D. Henderson late today requested the operators to keep the pits closed temporarily.

Two Scheduled to Reopen.

The mines scheduled to reopen were the No. 6 of the Sunday Creek Coal Co., at Millfield, where 82 persons were killed in an explosion a year ago, and the Lick Run Mine, operated by the Hocking & Athens Coal Co.

Approximately 150 strikers were involved in last night's disturbance, National Guard observers said. The dynamited trestle was on a spur track leading to No. 6 mine. Chute, assistant foreman of No. 6 mine, was brought to a hospital here suffering from a serious wound in the back of the head.

This attack was followed by the stoning of an automobile in which four men were the targets. The victims were not hurt seriously. Telephone lines into the two mines were cut.

"Professional agitators" were blamed by Gov. White for the recurrent disorders. In a formal statement

Are Reconciled as Swedish Cabinet Strips Prince of His Title.

Nice, France, March 20 (U.P.).—A royal reconciliation occurred today when Prince Lennart, of Sweden, and his bride arrived on their honeymoon and visited the prince's father and grandfather.

The couple, who married despite the formal objections of the Swedish royal family, had luncheon with Lennart's father, Prince William, at a quiet restaurant on the sea front. Later they drove by automobile to visit King Gustaf at his hotel.

Their visit to the king coincided with promulgation by the Swedish cabinet at Stockholm of a decree depriving Lennart of his title and prerogatives. The prince said he probably would take the German title of "Count of Mainu." The couple will go to the Island of Mainu, in Lake Constance, to live on the prince's estate.

Belfast Fears Trend Of Anglo-Irish Break

Illegal Drilling Resumed in Free State, Assert Northern Officials.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, March 20 (A.P.).—Authorities of Northern Ireland today watched with anxiety and alarm an increasingly serious situation in the Irish Free State, where President Eamon de Valera is intent upon further severance of the ties to England.

Drilling has been resumed illegally by De Valera's Irish Republican army in various parts of the Free State, officials here said. There was a feeling that the attack from ambush on a party of men cycling to an Hibernian hall in County Londonderry on St. Patrick's Day might be made a pretext for active aggression in the northern territory.

A machine gun has been used in Irish Republican army maneuvers in at least one instance close to the border.

The automobile of Coroner J. H. Murphy was stolen at Dundalk last week and was understood to have been used with two other cars for the transportation of rifles into Northern Ireland from the arms dump at Louth. The stolen car was recovered at Newry, in County Down.

Prime Minister Viscount Craigavon had to pass southward through Portadown yesterday on his way to propose the health of the bride at a wedding in Belfast. Police arranged for a football match of the Irish League at Portadown to be prolonged five minutes to allow the prime minister to pass through the town without interruption.

The Northern government dealt promptly with the ambushing of the Hibernian party, which was fired upon near the town of Magherafelt, by offering a reward of £500 for information leading to the identification and

PLUMMER, SHIPPING BOARD LEADER, DIES

Illness of Two Years Proves Fatal; Was Appointed by Harding.

Edward C. Plummer, vice chairman of the Shipping Board, died last night in his apartment in the Hotel Burlington. Mr. Plummer had been in bed since February 21, suffering of complications resulting from an operation more than two years ago.

He was appointed to the Shipping Board on June 9, 1921, by President Harding, and since February, 1924, he had served as vice chairman of the board. In the early part of his life he was an attorney, specializing in admiralty law. For 21 years he was legal counsel for the Atlantic Carriers Association. He was also well known as an author.

His duties on the Shipping Board were devoted to the chairmanships of the committee on legislation and ocean mail contracts and the committee on trade routes and ship operations. He was also a member of the committees on claims and construction loans.

He was born in Freeport, Me., in 1864, and was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1887. During the Spanish-American War he was commissioned an assistant paymaster in the Navy, and in 1899 he became attorney and secretary of the Atlantic Carriers Association, a voluntary association of shipping men engaged in coastwise and South American trade.

Up to 1920, when he retired from active practice, Mr. Plummer was en-

Man Seized in Baltimore For Sunday Sale of Bible

Baltimore, March 20 (A.P.).—Even Bibles are barred from sale on Sunday under Maryland's blue laws, according to a police magistrate's decision here today.

Joseph der Guardis, 46, was arrested today when a policeman saw him making a house-to-house canvass for buyers of the Bible and religious tracts. The charge against him was working on Sunday.

"The Lord has given me permission to sell the Holy Book on Sunday," Der Guardis told the magistrate who replied, "If you want to sell it, do it on week days, not on Sunday," and dismissed him.

RIO GRANDE DO SUL BREAKS WITH BRAZIL

Vargas' Opponents Ready to Face Any Situation, Is Montevideo Report.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, March 20 (A.P.).—The Montevideo correspondent of the newspaper La Nacion today had reports that the Brazilian state of Rio Grande do Sul had broken off "political relations" with the de facto government of President Getulio Vargas.

The correspondent said his information was based on telegraphic advices from Porto Alegre, Brazil, which also said that the southern Brazilian state of Sao Paulo was contemplating a similar attitude.

Some unrest was reported at Santa Ana on receipt of the same information and troops were reported being held to quarters there.

The Montevideo report also had it that Gen. Flores da Cunha was found in the state of Rio Grande by newspapermen, who quoted him as saying his state was ready to face any situation. He declined to give any more details "unless the situation clarified."

The Montevideo report contradicted dispatches from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, today which said that President Vargas had summoned Gen. Da Cunha from Porto Alegre to Rio de Janeiro as a mediator in his dispute with the southern state of Rio Grande do Sul.

The Rio dispatch added that Gen. Da Cunha had flown from Porto Alegre and would confer with the president tomorrow.

The Rio government announced meanwhile that the situation was absolutely quiet, after a cabinet meet-

One hundred and eighty-three Communists were wounded and 100 were arrested. Police used their swords on the demonstrators, who fought with stones and clubs. Most of the Communists were members of youth's sporting organizations.

First Day of Spring Mild, But Snow Falls at Night

Spring arrived officially yesterday at 2:54 o'clock, in the midst of a sunny, cheery afternoon. The season displayed its usual contrariness, however, shortly before 11 o'clock last night, when snow flurries swept Montgomery County and portions of the District of Columbia. The snow in the city was preceded by a rainfall.

The temperature at 10 o'clock last night was 48 degrees with the mercury declining. The prediction for today is rain, but the Weather Bureau promises that it will be warmer tonight. Last night's rain was slightly ahead of schedule. It was the one predicted for today.

Only in Western States was spring's official debut in keeping with warning to Associated Press dispatches. In most sections the sun, northward bound, crossed the astronomical line into the vernal season, without accompaniment of any decided temperature changes.

In New York City seasonal sunshine brought out spring finery. In the Baltimore vicinity, highways carried increased numbers of motorists. Chicago and other Midwestern cities expecting wintry weather greeted a somber first day of spring, but without the promised snow.

The weatherman was insistent that snow would assail most of the Midwestern area and gave additional warning that real spring weather might not be expected until the end of the week.

The winter ended yesterday was one of the mildest on record.

15 U. S. CRAFT ORDERED BACK FROM SHANGHAI

Major Part of Asiatic Fleet Will Remain in Far East.

8,080 CHINESE KILLED IN WARFARE, REPORT

Property Loss Is Placed at $400,000,000; 250,000 Thrown Out of Jobs.

(Associated Press.)

Their mission of protecting American lives at Shanghai ended, fifteen United States war vessels yesterday were ordered by the Navy Department to point their prows homeward.

The miniature fleet—consisting of six destroyers, six submarines, the aircraft tender Jason, the submarine tender Beaver, and the transport Chaumont—will leave behind the major part of the Asiatic fleet which rushed across the Pacific in February when the Chinese-Japanese hostilities threatened to engulf the International Settlement.

Still on guard will be Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, aboard his modern cruiser Houston, and more than twoscore smaller vessels. In addition, the Thirty-first Infantry regiment will be left behind as its transport sails.

Other Withdrawals Undecided.

Officials said there was no indication when the infantry regiment, the first regular Army troops to be sent to China since the Boxer rebellion, would be withdrawn.

Last week five destroyers were ordered to leave the Orient for their base at Manila.

In addition to the Chaumont, yesterday's orders called for the withdrawal to Manila of the Seventeenth Destroyer Division, consisting of the Tracy, Borie, Macleish, Simpson, McCormick and Truxton, which will leave the Philippine Islands April 18 for the Mare Island (Calif.) Navy Yard, to be placed in the "reserve pool" of the battle force; Submarine Division 9, consisting of the S-30 to S-35, inclusive, and the submarine tender Beaver, which will leave Manila May 2 for Pearl Harbor, to be placed in reserve commission; and the Jason, which will leave Manila April 2 for the Puget Sound Navy Yard, where she will be decommissioned.

Langley to Replace Jason.

The aircraft carrier Langley will replace the Jason with the Asiatic squadron.

To supplement the destroyers on constant duty in Chinese waters, the Navy on January 28 ordered four destroyers from Manila to Shanghai, and two days later sent the entire fleet, consisting of 51 vessels.

Nanking, China, March 20 (A.P.).—Hostilities with Japan in the Shanghai area have cost the Chinese 8,080 lives and $400,000,000 in property loss Wu Ta-Chun, chief of the Chinese

Dog Guards Body Of Woman 3 Days

Tries to Prevent Removal From Home When Death Is Discovered.

A vigil of three days over the body of its owner was ended last night by a white poodle dog that tried to prevent police from removing the body.

For several days the neighbors of Mrs. Mamie Boden, 55 years old, of 1337 Four-and-a-half street southwest, had failed to observe her about the house. Howls of the poodle dog attracted the attention of James Thompson, a neighbor, who called police.

As the police entered, the dog, which had been without food for several days, tried feebly to prevent them from touching the body. It is believed that Mrs. Boden died on Wednesday or Thursday. An autopsy will be performed today at the Morgue, to determine the cause of her death. There was no evidence of foul play, police said.

Toscanini to Go 5,000 Miles for One Concert

New York, March 20 (A.P.).—Arturo Toscanini will travel the 5,000 miles from Italy to New York to conduct one concert for the benefit of unemployed musicians. Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the Philharmonic Symphony Society, today announced receipt of a cablegram from Toscanini in which the conductor said he would sail on April 19 aboard the liner Ile De France.

Following the concert, to be given at Carnegie Hall on April 28, Toscanini will return to Europe, where he has been undergoing treatment for an affliction of the right arm.

CARRIER PIGEON NOTE HELD NEW KIDNAPING LINK

"RED" JOHNSON QUIZ WILL BE CONTINUED

Sailor Sent to Jersey City, but His Story Is Still Being Checked.

East Stroudsburg, Pa., March 20 (A. P.).—A message referring to the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., and found bound to the leg of a dead carrier pigeon, was carried by its finder, Leroy Bond, to the Hopewell, N. J., home of the famous flier yesterday.

Bond refused to divulge the contents of the message, but said authorities at Hopewell described it as the most important clew in the case in more than a week.

A reference in the note to Charles ("Red") Johnson, sailor suitor of Betty Gow, the stolen baby's nurse, led him to connect the message with the kidnaping, Bond said.

As soon as he discovered the message, at the foot of the steps in front of a store in Brodheadsville, Monroe County, Bond rushed with it to Charles Stein, a deputy sheriff.

The two yesterday took it to Col. Lindbergh.

Continues Johnson Quiz.

Hopewell, N. J., March 20 (A.P.).—Henry (Red) Johnson, sailor suitor of the nurse to the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, was returned from the aviator's Sourland Mountain estate to Jersey City police tonight, but it was learned from a reliable source that he was to be subjected to additional intensive questioning.

Despite a noncommittal statement by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf about results of the three-day examination of Johnson here it was ascertained that Jersey City police, dissatisfied with correlation of some of his statements, intended continuing the questioning tonight.

"Johnson was questioned," the Schwarzkopf statement said, "and his statements were compared with those he had previously made and also with statements taken from others, and no information of any consequence in this case in addition to his other statements was discovered."

Woman's Home Searched.

The Schwarzkopf bulletin also disclosed that Miss Theresa Desi, of Hopewell, had been questioned on March 10 and on March 18 and that her home was searched. It was reported that she had identified a rogues' gallery picture of a man who, she said, drove a blue sedan, which became stuck in a muddy lane near her home and that of the Lindberghs on the night of the kidnaping, March 1.

The bulletin stated that "nothing of importance" resulted, but that she

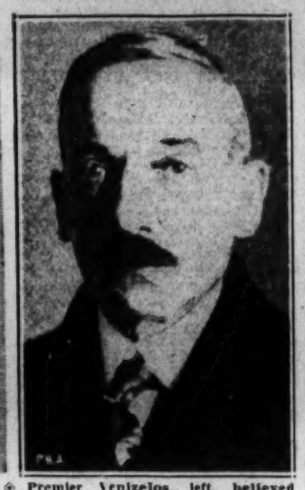
Grange Master to Run On Economics Platform

Columbus, Ohio, March 20 (A.P.).—A platform stressing economic recovery, reduction of taxes and maintenance of constitutional government as the three "real issues" in this campaign was submitted today by L. J. Taber, seeking the Republican senatorial nomination in the Ohio May primary.

Mr. Taber, master of the National Grange and staunch supporter of prohibition, termed economics the most urgent of the three issues he names with tax reduction next in importance. While he made no direct reference to the liquor question, Mr. Taber said he stood for honest law enforcement and elimination of judicial delays.

Greece Soon May See Monarch or Dictator



Premier Venizelos, left, believed facing an imminent crisis in the Greek government, and Gen. Theodorus Pangalos, who may come into power as a dictator.

Venizelos Delays Crisis, but Cabinet Changes Seem Imminent.

Athens, Greece, March 20 (U.P.).—Premier Eleutherios Venizelos was believed tonight to have postponed, for a few days at least, the long-threatened Greek governmental crisis arising out of financial difficulties.

It was generally believed, however, that the next week might lead to far-reaching cabinet changes, with some quarters discussing the possibility that an absolute dictatorship might be established or that the monarchy might be restored.

For the last month, Premier Venizelos and his Liberal cabinet have

Answers Assertion Bank Illegally Donated to Smith Campaign.

New York, March 20 (A.P.).—A charge that the County Trust Co. contributed to Alfred E. Smith's presidential campaign in 1928, in violation of the corrupt practices act, was described as "entirely false" today by John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

The charge was made yesterday by Patrick F. Kenny, Yonkers contractor, in his explanation of a suit brought against him by the bank to collect on a $20,000 note. Kenny told reporters his defense to the suit was based on the contention the note was part of an alleged scheme to cover up contributions by the bank.

Raskob said:

"As chairman of the Democratic national committee and as a director of the County Trust Co., I know that the defense claim against the trust company by Mr. P. F. Kenny is entirely false."

Orie R. Kelly, president of the bank, also denied Kenny's charge, saying:

"The suit brought by the County Trust Co. against P. F. Kenny to recover upon a $20,000 note made by him, and of which the records of the bank show he received the full proceeds, to do with as he saw fit, and upon which he regularly paid interest, is pending in the courts and will be promptly brought to trial by the plaintiffs.

"Suffice it to say that the trust company never at any time, directly or indirectly, contributed to any political campaign fund, and any such allegations contained in his answer are entirely untrue."

President and First Lady Walk HomeFromChurch

(Associated Press.)

With brilliant sunshine and pleasant breezes heralding the approach of spring, President and Mrs. Hoover walked back to the White House yesterday from the little gray stone Quaker Church at Twenty-first and S streets.

The Chief Executive and First Lady, who had motored to the church, as usual, strolled down Connecticut avenue for nearly a mile, with their Secret Service escort following.

HIT-RUN CLEW HELD AS POLICEMAN DIES

Private W. J. Grissam, 54, Is Found Lying in Street; Inquest Tomorrow.

Police last night were working on the theory that Private William J. Grissam, 54-year-old United States Park policeman, who died early yesterday in Emergency Hospital shortly after being brought there by a taxi driver, who found him lying in an unconscious condition on John Marshall place near Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was the victim of a "hit-and-run" driver.

Hospital authorities at first thought that Private Grissam had suffered an apoplectic stroke, but an autopsy performed by Coroner Joseph D. Rogers disclosed that the policeman died from a fractured skull, fractured ribs and injuries to the lungs.

Sergt. L. G. Purtlebough, also of the park force, was the last person to see Private Grissam alive, it is believed. The sergeant talked to Grissam about 5 o'clock yesterday morning, he said. At that time the officer seemed in the best of spirits, according to Sergt. Purtlebough.

Private Grissam was patroling his beat in the vicinity of Judiciary Square. He asked Sergt. Purtlebough

Cabinet Is Reorganized By Premier of Poland

Warsaw, Poland, March 20 (A.P.).—The cabinet of Premier Alexander Prystor was reorganized today, with Seweryn Ludiewicz, general manager of the Land Bank, taking over the portfolios of agriculture and agrarian reforms.

Alfred Kuehl, minister of communications, was given the added portfolio of public works.

Bandits Derail and Attack Passenger Train in Mexico

Mexico City, March 20 (U.P.).—The National Railway fast passenger train from Laredo was wrecked at midnight last night in the State of Queretaro and attacked by bandits, who were driven off after a 30-minute battle with the military escort.

One bandit was killed and one soldier wounded before the attackers were driven off.

The train, known as the Missouri Pacific Sunshine Special before it reaches Laredo, on the United States border, was speeding along between Mariscala and Jocoqui stations in Queretaro State at 11:30 last night when it struck a section of track which the bandits had torn out.

The locomotive shot off the tracks and the next four cars turned over. In the darkness, the passengers were terrified and their panic was increased by the bandit attack. The express messenger was killed in the crash.

The officer and eight soldiers protecting the train, stood off the attacking band of 30 outlaws in a pitched battle that lasted until midnight. The bandits repeatedly attempted to advance, but were turned back by the fire. They fled and have not been captured.

The passengers from the United States arrived here on the regular afternoon train from Guadalajara, which uses the same track as the fast train from Escobedo Junction, which is twenty minutes' run south of the point of attack.

SALES TAX FOES PLAN NEW PUSH IN HOUSE TODAY

No "Cooling Off" Is Seen From Hectic Fight of Last Week.

LAGUARDIA PREDICTS TIDE OF OPPOSITION

Defends Revenue Estimates on Substitutes After Criticism.

By J. B. M'DONNELL.

The House will reconvene today, after its abruptly interrupted session of Saturday, without much to indicate that there has been any general "cooling off," as suggested by leaders, in the hectic battle over the manufacturers' sales tax provision of the bipartisan billion-dollar tax bill sponsored by the ways and means committee.

Democratic and Republican leaders are to confer in efforts to find a way to slow down the "run-away House," as Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, described it in the closing minutes of the tumultuous session of Saturday.

There is to be no abatement in the drive of the sales tax opponents, however, Representative Fiorella H. La Guardia (Republican), of New York, declared last night. The opposition to the sales tax is increasing and will sweep the provision out of the bill, said the fiery New York Republican, to whose leadership Representative John W. McCormick (Democrat), of Massachusetts, said the bolting Democrats had submitted.

Hits Foes of Substitutes.

Representative LaGuardia lashed out at criticism of the substitute taxes proposed by opponents of the sales tax. He charged that criticism had been fostered by "certain gentlemen in my own city, in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and in the Federal Reserve Board," who had sought to create the belief the estimates of revenue which would be produced by the substitute program were exaggerated.

"They are lying," he said. "They know they are lying, and they know that I know it, and that I know who they are, and they dare not deny it. If they do deny it, I'll name them and name their institutions and give reasons why they are conducting this campaign, and they'll be responsible for what happens to their institutions."

Whatever the source or the soundness of the criticism of the substitute program, however, it is a fact that several members of the House are not satisfied the program will yield as much revenue as its proponents predict.

New Fight Due Tomorrow.

Consideration of the tax bill will not be resumed on the floor until tomorrow. Today will be given to consideration of bills on the calendar and passed in the tightening of lines for the renewal of the tax battle.

Whether a test of strength will be had by an immediate vote on the sales tax provision remains to be seen. Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, acting chairman of the ways and means committee, suggested such a course, but there are parliamentary obstacles in the way, inasmuch as the sales tax provision is far down in the tax bill and under regular procedure it would not be reached for a vote for some time. In the meantime, of course, the preceding sections would be the subject of amendments by opponents of the sales tax.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell (Republican), of New York, minority leader, last night refused to commit

POWER HELD MAJOR ISSUE IN CAMPAIGNS

37 Congress Members Sign Statement of Popular Government Body.

(Associated Press.)

A joint declaration that the power question will be a major issue in the fall campaigns and that the "power trust" is trying to influence the nomination of presidential candidates, was laid before the Nation yesterday by fifteen senators and 22 representatives.

Issued through the National Popular Government League, an organization formed in 1913 to fight for measures giving greater popular control in government, the statement said the political significance of this move "can not be overestimated and must challenge the attention of those interested in any progressive movement or measure."

The declaration was carried on the cover of a 47-page pamphlet reviewing the records of President Hoover and Democratic presidential candidates on the power question and forecasting what each would do in connection with it if elected.

The document was prepared by Judson King, league director, with the congressional signers subscribing only to the frontispiece declaration.

Statement Approved.

Headed the "power records of the presidential candidates, a nonpartisan analysis for the information of voters," the statement over the signatures of the 37 Senate and House members, said:

"We regard the power question in its economic, financial, industrial and social aspects as one of the most important issues before the American people in this campaign of 1932.

"Its political significance can not be overestimated and must challenge the attention of those interested in any progressive movement or measure. The reason is plain. The combined utility and banking interests, headed by the power trust, have the most powerful and widely organized political machine ever known in our history.

"This machine cooperates with other reactionary economic, industrial and financial groups. It is strenuously working to control the nomination of candidates for the Presidency and the Congress of both dominant political parties."

That is as far as the congressional signers went.

The document concluded that President Hoover, if reelected, would "remain a power trust President."

Views on Democrats.

Taking up the positions of Democratic presidential possibilities, it said Speaker Garner would "aid and sign such measures as the Norris Muscle Shoals bill and select appointees to various positions dealing with power having the public viewpoint."

Gov. Roosevelt, it added, would "assist and sign measures for public ownership, operation and adequate distribution of power for major public power sites."

Former Gov. Smith's record on power was declared to be "mixed and has become more so since 1928, making it difficult to forecast future action," although it was said he would "favor the Norris bill for public operation of Muscle Shoals and like sites, but use his influence for private distribution of the power."

Newton D. Baker was classed as a "public interest" power man ten years ago, but the document said he had grown "far more conservative" since and would "make a power trust President."

"From the viewpoint of the banking and utility interests," it continued, "Gov. Ritchie would doubtless make as safe and sound a President as Mr. Hoover. In this respect they differ only in party labels."

Congressional Signers.

The front-page statement was signed by seven Republican independents, seven Democrats and the one Farmer-Labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota, the Republicans were:

Johnson, California; Norris, Nebraska, listed as one of the founders and still a member of the league's executive committee; Nye and Frazier, North Dakota; Brookhart, Iowa; Cutting, New Mexico, and Howell, Nebraska.

The Democrats were Walsh and Wheeler, Montana; McKeller, Tennessee; Costigan, Colorado; Dill, Washington; Gore, Oklahoma, and Long, Louisiana.

Fourteen Democratic members of the House, seven Republicans, and the lone Farmer-Labor member, Kvale, of Minnesota, signed the declaration. The Democrats were:

Rainey, Illinois; Canon, Missouri; Collins, Mississippi; Evans, Montana; Disney, Oklahoma; Hill, Washington; Howard, Nebraska; Johnson, Oklahoma; Martin, Oregon; Norton, Nebraska, Patterson, Alabama; Rankin, Mississippi; Romjue, Missouri, and Thomason, Texas.

The Republicans were Amlie and Schneider, Wisconsin; Christgau and Selvig, Minnesota; Horr, Washington; LaGuardia, New York, and Sinclair, North Dakota.

Albany, N. Y., March 20 (A.P.).—Gov. Roosevelt declined to comment today on the statement issued through the National Popular Government League and indorsed by 37 members of Congress that the power issue would be dominant in the coming presidential campaign and that the "power trust" is trying to influence the nomination of candidates.

Prisoner Quizzed In Kidnap Attempt

Police Seeking to Clear Up Robberies in New Jersey Area.

New Brunswick, N. J., March 20 (A.P.).—George Malden, arrested shortly after an attempt was made to enter the home of J. Seward Johnson, wealthy surgical dressing manufacturer, Friday night, was subjected to an intensive questioning by police today.

Authorities were reticent concerning the results of the all-day interrogation, but it was learned they were endeavoring to solve several recent robberies in this vicinity. Johnson, who was held up in his home on February 2 and robbed of $3,000, was among several persons who viewed the prisoner.

Although the attempt to enter Johnson's home by means of an extension ladder was similar to the method used by the kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., police have discounted any possible connection between the two cases.

The man who had attempted to enter the Johnson home had placed a ladder against the window of a second-floor nursery, where the manufacturer's 2-month-old daughter was sleeping. He was frightened away.

KIDNAPED MARYLAND MAN FOUND CHAINED

Rescued From Swamp, Berlin Resident Says Captors Threatened Life.

Berlin, Md., March 20 (A.P.).—Charles W. Brown, 31 years old, who had been missing since Tuesday, was found today manacled by a chain to a tree in Hollygrove Swamp, six miles east of here.

The discovery was made by E. Ward Taylor, a farm youth, who severed the chain and brought Brown to his home here. The man was suffering from hunger and exposure.

Brown told Sheriff William Purnell, of Worcester County, a story of being kidnaped, imprisoned for four days in a dungeon-like room, threatened for not signing two statements which his captors offered and then left chained to the tree.

He said he was waylaid by four masked men Tuesday night but he tore the mask from one man, recognizing him as a prominent Worcester County resident. Brown's story was that the men offered him the statements to sign in exchange for his freedom, threatening to chain him to a still and blow it up and telling him they had kidnaped his 8 year-old daughter. He said that the men took $300 from him.

Police refused to reveal the man named by Brown or the content of the statements and began an investigation.

Summer Deputies Named in County

Anne Arundel Police List Increased for Protection of Resorts.

Annapolis, Md., March 20 (A.P.).—Sheriff R. Glenn Prout is preparing for the summer season around Annapolis and in all sections of Anne Arundel County. The lists of deputies, county police and special police are always enlarged during the summer months for the protection of resort proprietors and cottage owners.

Since Sheriff Prout came into office he has been interested in furnishing protection to persons who own summer homes along the county's waterfront. As some of the property is located in spots of highways where nature is at its best in the summer, full protection is not possible.

In addition to the Annapolis Police Department and the sheriff himself nearly 100 men are protecting residents of Anne Arundel County and their property. Of this number twelve are paid deputy sheriffs and ten are salaried county police, being hired by the board of county commissioners. The others are unpaid deputies and county officers, who, however, derive an income from resort owners and heads of settlements who desire special protection.

2 of U. of V. Professors Win Free Foreign Study

Charlottesville, Va., March 20.—Two University of Virginia faculty members, Dr. M. G. de Chazeau, associate professor of economics, and Dr. Oron James Hale, assistant professor of history, have been awarded fellowships for foreign study by the Social Science Research Council. Dr. de Chazeau will spend the coming year in England studying English experience under the electricity supply act of 1926. He will investigate the direct social control of the generation and transmission of bulk power. Dr. Hale plans to spend a year in England and Germany collecting material for a study of the influence of the newspaper press on Anglo-German relations from 1890 to 1914.

ABDUCTED "QUEEN" OF BALL RETURNED

Girl Unharmed, but College Students' Prank Starts Investigation.

Columbia, Mo., March 20 (A.P.).—The "kidnaping" of Miss Mary Butterfield, of Kansas City, who was to have been crowned "St. Pat's Queen" at the University of Missouri last night, turned out to be a prize college prank, yet the mystery surrounding the "abduction" was by no means solved today.

Miss Butterfield was released by her "abductors" late last night in time to be introduced at the annual ball given by the students in the College of Engineering, although too late for the coronation ceremony.

Today she said she was unable to name the five men, presumably students, who thrust her into an automobile as she was leaving her sorority house yesterday afternoon and took her to Moberly, 36 miles north of here, but said she could identify them if she saw them. She said she was well treated and passed the time playing bridge. She was returned here at 11:30 p. m.

Whether the "kidnaping" was a flare-up of the age-old feud between students of the College of Engineering and the School of Law, or was staged by a certain group of engineers, also remained a mystery. Members of both factions denied their participation in the incident. Nevertheless, the "kidnaping" threw the campus into a turmoil yesterday. Local police and the sheriff here were notified of the "abducting," and even the State highway patrol lent its assistance.

Although informed by long-distance telephone that their daughter was in safe hands, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Butterfield came here last night after learning of the "abduction." The mother did not receive the news of the "kidnaping" with the same spirit of fun it excited among certain campus factions.

Dr. Albert C. Heckel, dean of men, said he would continue his own investigation of the abduction tomorrow.

Car Collision Hurts Boy; Father Blamed by Police

A 6-year-old boy suffered slight lacerations of the face and his father was charged at the Second Precinct Station with having bad brakes yesterday afternoon when their car struck another automobile at the intersection of Rhode Island avenue and Tenth street northwest.

The boy, Joseph Taylor, jr., of 3113 Twelfth street northeast, was cut on the chin by flying glass when a car driven by his father collided with an automobile driven by Henry C. Biscol, 30, of 3831 Garfield street northwest. Biscol had swerved his car to one side to avoid hitting another car.

Boy, 3, Felled by Auto, Is Treated at Hospital

James Doray, 3 years old, of 3852 Beecher street northwest, was treated at Walter Reed Hospital yesterday for lacerations of the face and body bruises, suffered when he was struck by an automobile in front of 719 Ingraham street.

The boy stepped from behind a parked car into the path of an automobile driven by James A. Booth, 60, of 819 Ingraham street. Booth put the child in his car and took him to the hospital, where he was treated for a laceration of the chin and slight contusions of the body. He was later allowed to go home.

German Police Arrest Huge Counterfeit Ring

Stuttgart, Germany, March 20 (A.P.).—The newspaper Montags Post today reported that the criminal police had tracked down a huge gang of counterfeiters and arrested six men with 1,500,000 marks in counterfeit 100-mark bills.

Details were withheld pending questioning of the prisoners, but it was estimated that forged notes amounting to about $2,000,000 had been floated by the gang. Police were reported searching for a gang leader who recently returned to Germany from South America.

'RED' JOHNSON QUIZ WILL BE CONTINUED

furnished police with information concerning whereabouts of one of the men who worked on the road leading into the Lindbergh estate. No report had been received about a rogues' gallery identification, he said.

The file of cards kept by State police of persons interviewed, persons reported upon, places searched and other items now numbers 1,400, Col. Schwarzkopf said.

Mother Tear-Stained.

Meanwhile, it became known that while the strain and anxiety have not broken through the controlled calm of the kidnaped baby's mother, her eyes showed traces of weeping today. Mrs. Lindbergh remains very closely with her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, or with Mrs. Henry Breckinridge.

New arrangements for feeding the State troopers stationed in the Lindbergh garage have relieved the household of some burden. The food now is cooked before being taken there, and is only warmed in the Lindbergh kitchen.

Today's developments produced the following dead-ends:

The three men arrested in Hopewell in connection with an alleged automobile theft ring were said by Col. Schwarzkopf to have "no possible connection with the case."

The attempted entering by ladder of the home of J. Seward Johnson, wealthy manufacturer, of Highland Park, 20 miles from here, was declared after investigation by Douglas M. Hicks, Middlesex County prosecutor, to yield no link in the Lindbergh case.

Though the Johnsons were convinced the intruder intended kidnaping their 7-week-old daughter, Diana, from the nursery, the man was armed and there was nothing to prove his intent was not merely burglary.

The alleged kidnaping of Albert G. Gregory from his home in Sussex, N. J., was declared by Schwarzkopf to have no relation in the case. The State police head said Gregory's wife established his disappearance was voluntary, to escape appearing in a court case involving his mother-in-law.

WHEELER PREDICTS ROOSEVELT VICTORY

States Entire West to Back New Yorker at Chicago and in Election.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Wheeler, of Montana, returned to the Capital yesterday with a prediction that the entire West would support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Democratic presidential nomination, and in the election, too, if he wins at Chicago.

One of the leading congressional advocates of the New Yorker, Senator Wheeler returned from a tour in his behalf that took him into North Dakota, Illinois, Minnesota and Montana. He said he found all indications there pointing toward a Roosevelt victory.

The Montanan joined Senator Frazier, North Dakota Republican Independent, in the view that the North Dakota primary law made in mandatory on the eleven Republican delegates, chosen last Tuesday, to support former Senator France, of Maryland, who won the preference vote. President Hoover was not entered for the preference vote, but nine of the eleven delegates elected were pledged to him and two for a "progressive."

North Dakota officials declined to rule on the contention, although James Morris, State attorney general, said by precedent the State's delegations were not bound by the preference decision. He conceded the law was ambiguous and never had been tested.

Wheeler's views coincided with a flood of other week-end political developments, which included the filing of a delegate slate pledged to Speaker Garner in California and an indorsement of former Gov. Harry F. Byrd for the presidential nomination by the "Fighting Ninth" Congressional District Democrats in Virginia.

It will be a three-day clash in the California primary, with Smith and Roosevelt slates contesting with that favoring Garner. The Garner slate is headed by William G. McAdoo.

Speaker Garner is sticking to the speakership task and declines to discuss the boom for him in the South and West. The Texas committee set up at San Antonio to press his cause for the nomination will meet again today to discuss future plans.

World Trade Fell 27 Per Cent in '31

41 Per Cent Decline Noted in Commerce by British Board Since 1929.

London, March 20 (U.P.).—World trade in 1931 decreased by approximately 27 per cent compared with 1930, and by approximately 41 per cent compared with 1929, according to fairly complete figures compiled by the Board of Trade.

With the decrease came increased unemployment, increased bread lines in most countries and decreased dividends by business corporations, all contributing to decrease still further the purchasing power of the masses and to make the hoped-for expansion of trade in 1932 still more difficult.

Imports into Britain decreased by 16.6 per cent compared with 1930. Exports from Britain decreased by 31.8 per cent. Imports into the United States declined by 32 per cent, while exports from the United States declined 37 per cent.

Of sixteen important countries for which complete details of 1931 trade are available, Australia showed the largest percentage decrease in imports, namely, 54 per cent. This was brought about by the highest tariff walls in the world and by import restrictions and quotas. Australian exports declined by only 17 per cent.

Cousin of Mark Twain, Veteran Actor, Is Dead

Edgewood, R. I., March 20 (A.P.).—Harry Cameron Clemens, of New York City, veteran actor and second cousin of Mark Twain, died here today at the home of Frank A. Rhodes, also a former actor. He was in his sixty-seventh year. Mr. Clemens played in a stock company in a number of Eastern cities, including Washington, D. C.

He was also for three years a member of the cast of "Welcome Home," a production originating in Chicago, and in 1920 went to Australia to supervise the production of "Welcome Home" in that country. In 1927 he played with Helen Hayes and Norman Trevor in "Young Blood" in New York, and also appeared there in "The Mystery Man" and "Holiday."

Democrat Claims Farm Relief Credit

Senator Bailey Declares Party Sponsored Bills to Give Aid.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina, issued a statement yesterday through the Democratic national committee asserting Democrats have led "the movement to give relief to the farmers during the present session of Congress."

He said that Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, and Representative Jones (Democrat), Texas, sponsored the amendment to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation setting aside $200,000,000 of its funds for agricultural loans.

Bailey called attention to the bill establishing the Agricultural Credit Corporation, which he said was fostered by Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, and pressed in the House by Representative Jones.

SUBMISSION VOTERS HELD WET BY DRYS

McBride Fixes Classification Even Though Repeal Is Not Suggested.

(United Press.)

Prohibitionists will classify as "wet" Congress members who favor submission to the States of the liquor problem, even though the submission carries no recommendation for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, said yesterday.

Mr. McBride said also, in a statement, that neither political party could afford to place a repeal or modification plank in its 1932 platform.

"The Antisaloon League will adhere to its previously announced position that a vote in favor of submitting repeal to the States would be a wet vote and neither legally nor logically a vote for a referendum," he said.

"The classification of all House votes for submission as wet shows that antiprohibition forces consider such votes as favorable to their program, thus making the issue clear cut. The crystallization of the issue by the House roll call will give the voters in the congressional districts an opportunity to learn the attitude of each candidate on maintenance or repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"The equal division between the parties of the House wet and dry votes proves that neither party can afford to advocate modification or repeal as a party principle.

"On constitutional prohibition each party will be compelled to take the stand that this question is one for nonpartisan decision in congressional and legislative districts. National party planks on prohibition can properly deal with a policy on enforcement of whatever laws may be in the Constitution, its candidates, if elected, will be sworn to support. But neither party could afford to take a partisan stand on a constitutional question on which Democrats and Republicans are equally divided."

Rescued Du Pont Party Is En Route to Havana

Colon, Panama, March 20 (A.P.).—Richard Du Pont, son of A. Felix Du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., and five other wealthy young men who were rescued from the yawl Nahma off Virginia on March 11, sailed today for Havana.

The Army transport Republic picked up Du Pont, the master of the Nahma, his cousin, Victor du Pont, Scott Townsend and Thomas Laffey, of Wilmington, and Lloyd Coates and Benjamin McFarlane, of Philadelphia, from their waterlogged craft and landed them at Cristobal.

Mail Fraud Trial Jury Deliberates 100 Hours

Minneapolis, Minn., March 20 (A.P.).—The eleven-man jury considering mail fraud charges against W. B. Foshay and H. H. Henley passed its one-hundredth hour today without arriving at a verdict.

Continuing its deliberations tonight, the jury sought to decide whether the stock promoter and his chief assistant were criminally responsible in connection with the failure of the Foshay enterprises in 1929. No word has come from the jurors since they began deliberations Wednesday.

FOES OF SALES TAX PLAN NEW PUSH IN HOUSE TODAY

himself on the question of an immediate sales tax vote. He would have to confer with members of his party first, he said.

Reiterating his support of the manufacturers' sales tax, he said that when its opponents sought an immediate vote to strike it out they should be prepared to offer a complete substitute program so that the country would be given a complete picture and know "the two horns of the didemma."

He described the LaGuardia substitute program as much more objectionable than the committee program including the sales tax.

"Mr. LaGuardia," he said, "has taken the Treasury program which the committee rejected because of its objectionable features. If he takes their program, why isn't he willing to accept their estimates of the probable revenue it will produce? In place of the general manufacturers' sales tax—to which I understand additional exemptions are to be proposed by the committee—the program proposed by Mr. LaGuardia calls for raising $138,000,000 by gross retail sales taxes imposed on special industries."

Responsibility for adoption of the sales tax was put up to the Democrats by the Republican House leader. "A majority on our side will vote for it, and the outcome will depend on what the Democrats do," he said.

Rainey Is Confident.

Representative Rainey continued firm in his faith that the sales tax would eventually be adopted because, he said, the House would find the alternatives are worse.

But other Democratic leaders were making no predictions, in the face of a decreasing number of party votes they could count on and reports that delegations which had promised to support the provision, including the Tammany delegation, were getting ready to withdraw their pledges.

The statement issued by Speaker John N. Garner on Saturday saying the sales tax had been adopted by the committee as the "surest, soundest and most effective means" to balance the Federal budget failed to have much effect. Certainly it did not overcome the effect of his statement on Friday which was interpreted as meaning he had deserted the sales tax fight in view of the vigorous opposition. One of the influential Democratic leaders of the House last night expressed the opinion that while the statement of Saturday was stronger it was not as strong as he would like to have seen it. Opponents of the tax, discussing the statements, denied they contained any demand for party support of the provision.

Doubtful on Substitute.

Whenever the vote comes on the sales tax, Mr. Crisp said that if it is stricken out his committee would work out substitute proposals, but what they would be he could not forecast.

Replying to the suggestion that opponents be prepared to submit a complete substitute program if they succeed in eliminating the sales tax, Mr. LaGuardia said they would whenever the ways and means committee was willing to let them go over the bill and take the responsibility for proposing amendments.

None the less, Mr. Crisp said that if the sales tax is eliminated, those who knock it out must assume responsibility for doing so and he would not be inclined to accept a mere recommitment to the committee, but would desire some action by the House on a substitute program.

HOOVER IS ACCUSED IN ALIEN LAW TALK

Head of House Committee Declares Jenkins Bill Is Unfair.

New York, March 20 (A.P.).—President Hoover was accused by Representative Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the House immigration committee, today of initiating infractions of the immigration laws to restrict the number of aliens entering the United States.

Asserting that the Jenkins bill, cutting immigration 90 per cent, discriminated against the eastern and western parts of Europe, he told the annual convention of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America.

"That seems to be the policy of the present administration, because our President at the opening session of Congress requested the Congress to put into law something that was done in violation of law."

Have Gone Beyond Order.

Through his executive order of 1930 advising consuls abroad to be more strict in the granting of visas, Mr. Dickstein said, the President "almost directly told the consuls to keep everybody out, no matter what the merits of the case, no matter how much money they had.

"And the consuls have gone beyond the order of the President. After wrangling for two years I still don't know how much a person must have to get out of the clutch of the consuls abroad."

Representative Dickstein criticized patriotic societies for supporting stringent restrictions on immigration and revealed he had introduced another bill whereby consul's rulings on visas could be appealed to the Secretary of Labor.

Ellis Island Probe Urged.

Edward Corsi, commissioner of immigration on Ellis Island, expressed the wish that someone on the House immigration committee would "turn the light on Ellis Island" to disclose the need for improvements to expedite the handling of immigrants and emigrants.

"I am very seriously concerned with the manner in which people are being detained on Ellis Island," he said. "Some of our immigrants are on that island from two to four months. It is too long a period of detention. We have nothing for these men and women to do. The result is that they are unhappy, discontented and many times become very dangerous to the service itself."

Referring to lawyers among others, he added, "We have found all sorts of rackets at the expense of these defenseless people. While I feel that the immigration service can stop this racketeering to a certain extent, it will go on until agencies such as yours are interested in the problem."

Phelps Dodge Loss For 1931 Is Heavy

Deficit of $7,188,798 Is Shown in Report of Copper Group.

New York, March 20 (A.P.).—The Phelps-Dodge Corporation, first of the leading copper producers to report for 1931, shows a net loss of $983,903, before depletion, as against a profit of $515,173 for 1930.

After a charge of $4,068,898 for depletion of properties and dividends of $2,131,420, the corporation showed a deficit to surplus of $7,188,798. This was substantially smaller than the deficit of $12,192,634 incurred in 1930, when dividends paid were substantially larger, totaling $5,911,342, and there was a larger charge for depletion, amounting to $6,796,465.

The balance sheet showed that this company, third largest American copper producer, had maintained a strong financial position. Current assets totaled $39,578,492, against current liabilities of $12,433,214. Cash on hand amounted to $7,206,629.

"A return to normalcy and profitable operation must await the liquidation of present stocks and an increased demand for copper which will come with increased business," said Lewis S. Cates, president, in his report to stockholders.

It was estimated that 250,000 persons were thrown out of employment.

DECISIONS LOOMING IN SENATE CONTESTS

(Associated Press.)

Decision involving contests against two Southern Democratic senators—Bankhead, of Alabama, and Bailey, of North Carolina—are in prospect this week by the Senate elections committee.

Chairman Shortridge yesterday called the committee to meet tomorrow. The amended petition of complaint filed yesterday by George M. Pritchard, Republican, charging fraud in the 1930 North Carolina contest, will be considered then.

Senate Democratic leaderss so far have been standing firmly by both Senator Bailey and Senator Bankhead, and if the party lines up solidly prospects of unseating either are doubtful.

The issue in the North Carolina case before the committee is whether the Pritchard charges form sufficient ground for full investigation by the Senate.

The committee will receive tomorrow the divided report of a subcommittee which inquired into the contest by former Senator J. Thomas Heflin against election of Senator Bankhead in 1930. The Republican majority recommended that the seat be declared vacant, the Democrats of the subcommittee disagreed and recommended that Senator Bankhead be left in the seat.

Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, announced he would seek an immediate decision by the committee on the Heflin-Bankhead contest.

Recreation School Plans Announced

Institute for Instruction in Games to Be Held for Colored.

To furnish instruction, practice and participation in games, and programs for groups of all ages, sessions of the recreation institute for colored workers in leisure time activities will be continued for the next five weeks at the Garnet-Patterson School on Tuesday evenings from 8 to 10 o'clock, under direction of a special committee headed by Mrs. J. Hayden Johnson and C. M. Pendleton.

The program committee, through Dr. E. B. Henderson, has arranged events to develop group leadership to best advantage, for which certificates will be awarded to all completing the course on April 19. Lectures will be given by leaders in the field of community organization and recreation work.

The institute is under general supervision of the Community Center Department, with which are associated the Boy Scouts, the physical education departments of Howard University and the public schools, the municipal playground department, Southeast Community House, Southwest Community House, the Recreators, the Washington branch of the Red Circle of the National Recreation Association, and the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Association.

RIO GRANDE DO SUL SPLITS WITH VARGAS

ing yesterday to discuss political developments.

Getulio Vargas was the Liberal candidate for the presidency of Brazil early in 1930, but Dr. Julio Prestes was elected to succeed Washington Luis, and there immediately arose rumblings of revolt.

Vargas Started Events.

Vargas, himself a resident of Rio Grande do Sul, started hostilities in October and gathered a great military force for a march toward Rio de Janeiro. He sent a military group into the capital to form a Junta, and on November 3, 1930, was summoned as the de facto president of the nation. He took his position amid great popular acclaim and announced he would step down as soon as conditions warranted in favor of a constitutional government.

Economic difficulties mounted rapidly, however, and he has been occupied since in coping with them.

About three weeks ago that part of his cabinet which came from Rio Grande do Sul, including the minister of justice and the minister of public works, stepped aside in protest against a "military raid" on the newspaper Carioca.

A recent dispatch from Santa Ana said a Rio Grande representative, J. F. de Assis Brasil, had visited Vargas and threatened withdrawal of southern support unless elections were held, although at the time it was publicly stated there was no intention of repeating the revolution of 1930.

Democratic Fund Is Growing Daily

$58,114 in Pledges and Gifts Reached Victory Pool Since March 1.

New York, March 20 (A.P.).—The Democratic victory fund has received $58,114 in gifts and pledges from 22,866 individuals since March 1, John W. Davis, chairman, announced today. An average of 1,345 men and women are now contributing $3,418 daily, he said.

"With more than 20,000 volunteer workers now concentrating activity on raising a substantial part of the $1,500,000 victory fund by Jefferson's birthday, when the national Democratic rally will be held in Washington, the party's preparedness campaign is gaining momentum daily," said Mr. Davis.

"The figures for March indicate the growing appreciation on the part of Democrats everywhere that provision of the funds for continuance and expansion of the constructive educational and organization work of the Democratic national committee prior to the actual presidential campaign is the first step toward assurance of a sweeping party victory, nationally and locally, in November."

DEATHS IN WESTERN PLANE CRASH NOW 7

San Bernardino Officials and Airways' Heads Assemble for Investigation.

San Bernardino, Calif., March 20 (A.P.).—The death of another passenger today increased to seven the toll of lives lost last night in the crash of an American Airways passenger plane near Calimesa, Calif.

Arthur Thomas, Tucson, Ariz., accountant, died today in a Redlands hospital. He was the only occupant of the plane to escape immediate death.

Officials of the American Airways and representatives of the Department of Commerce assembled here for an investigation with San Bernardino County officials into the cause of the crash. Coroner A. N. U'Ren said an inquest will be held tomorrow.

Flying in a fog, the airplane, piloted by Harold J. Kelsey, of Los Angeles, with H. H. Campbell, of Dallas, as copilot, struck a high tension wire and crashed in an orchard when the pilot failed in a five-minute attempt to recover equilibrium.

Witnesses expressed the opinion the pilot became confused in the dense mist, although the ship was exactly on its course.

The main gasoline tank exploded and the plane became a pyre. Portions of the ship were scattered over an area 200 feet square. Twelve rows of trees were mowed down in the 75-yard plunge of the big trimotored ship across the ground.

The power line broke and the whole district was thrown into temporary darkness except for the flashing of disturbed dynamos in a nearby power house and the leaping flames of the airplane.

Calimesa is 20 miles southeast of here. The plane was en route from Phoenix, Ariz., to Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, and was flying down a pass after clearing the San Bernardino Mountains

SENATOR WILLIAM H. KING.

IF the title "Defender of the Downtrodden" was to be conferred upon any member of the Upper House, there would be little need to go any further than the name of Senator William H. King, of Utah.

Whether it be in Haiti, the Philippines, the Indian reservations, the coal mines, or the textile centers, the gray-haired senator from Utah is always ready with arguments on their behalf. Nor are his cold analytical arguments limited to the spheres of the unfortunates. He is equally ready to debate international questions.

One of his greatest mental characteristics is his remarkable memory for facts and figures, particularly with reference to the silver question, which is one dear to his heart. It is to be expected that a silver Democrat, from a silver State, elected on a silver platform, should be well versed in his subject.

Yet, when Senator King talks silver, he never refers to a book, chart or table. He just rambles on with figures, dates and economic statistics, all stored away in his mind, and ready to be called into argument at the proper time.

From the age of 20, he has devoted his life to public service in his home State and in Congress. It is a rare occasion when an international issue does not find Senator King in the thick of the fight. Relations of this country with Latin America and independence of the Philippines are two subjects in which he always takes a leading part.

In a large measure he is responsible for the policy of the United States to Soviet Russia. In 1923 he made a trip to the Communist State and his report on the conditions he observed had an important bearing on the refusal of this Government to recognize Russia.

He was an outspoken foe of the occupation of Haiti by Marines, and his stand on the question threatened at one time to involve the Government. He had announced his intention to visit Haiti and President Borno refused to admit him. At first Senator King expressed determination to enter the country, but later relented to prevent any "untoward incidents."

His mother and father were among the early Utah Mormon pioneers and the name of the senator was placed on the records of the Mormon Church on June 3, 1863. He is always and has been for more than a quarter of a century a personality to be reckoned with at all Democratic national conventions.

Youngster of Today Has Knowledge of Everything

By JOHN J. DALY

EXPERIMENTS conducted by the National Child Research Center show the 4-year-old of today an ultramodernist.

About the time a boy or girl reaches the ripe old age of 5 parents are ready to surrender all authority.

A fellow of 6, nowadays, is fully conversant with most of life's problems and is ready to tell the old fogies of another generation just what is wrong with the world.

At 7, any youngster raised in the city knows what it is all about, familiar alike with the parking problem and the tax muddle.

Boys of 8 start wearing long pants and begin appropriating their fathers' neckties and shaving kits. No longer can the poet place a blessing on the little man, barefoot boy with cheeks of tan, for there are no barefoot boys and their cheeks are not tanned, but paled from the night life. They are now young men in dancing togs and ballroom pumps, waiting for their girl friends, ready to step on the gas.

"——and thy turned up pantaloons, and thy merry, whistled tunes." Bosh! Sophisticates do not whistle, and gentlemen do not turn up the bottoms of their trousers, even in rainy weather—not while taxis are so cheap.

* * * *

SINCE the younger generation has gone modern—ultra, in fact—victims of the Jazz Age, men and women of 30 and 40 are looked upon as "the old folks."

That is the fallacy of the infant philosophy. In reality, there are no old folks. The middle-aged look upon themselves as youngsters. The old-timers, hitting on all six, at 70 and 80, have come into a third childhood that manifests itself by dancing the blues away.

Everybody is young.

The world is young.

So that a survey of youthful activities nowadays finds only one class out of the running—babes in their cradles, unable to walk, totter, or talk. It is the only redeeming feature of ultramodernism.

Even that will be changed, as modernism advances. It is being attended to now. Where, years ago, children did not get their first full set of teeth until they were 3 or 4, nowadays they order the equipment a year ahead of time. They are able to dine downtown at 5 and take in the supper dances at 7.

* * * *

THERE is only one thing the city boys and girls do not know—and that is about life on the farm, the dear old farm; but since there will probably be no farms in the next three or four generations any knowledge of agriculture probably comes under the head of Useless Information.

If there is one thing the ultramodern child has no use for it is such stuff as dreams are made of—scenes of childhood, fond recollections and memory that presents them to view; orchards and meadows and the like. These have no place in the modern scheme of existence in the big city. The only bulls the boys know anything about are the policemen.

FELT-COATED STEEL IS RESULT OF STUDY

World of New Commercial Possibilities Opened Up Through Research.

Pittsburgh, March 20 (A.P.).—Felt-coated steel, a new material, was announced tonight by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

The felt coating of metal opens a world of new commercial possibilities. It means that for many practical uses steel can be covered with all sorts of protective or attractive finishes, even to the imitation of a silken surface.

The new laminated metal was developed by Dr. A. W. Coffman. By use of alloys the hitherto alien materials are made integral parts of the steel, on one or both sides.

The alloys are heated to something just beyond their "pastic" points, the temperature at which they become soft before turning into a true liquid. In that stage and above alloys of tin, lead, and zinc amalgamate with the linings. Exactly the right cooling is necessary for success.

Cut With Ordinary Tools.

The coatings mostly experimented with thus far are asbestos and cellulose.

Without rupture of these linings, says the report, the steel has been corrugated, cut with the ordinary tools of a tinsmith, rolled into pipe and even "drawn." A cellulose-coated piece of steel was elongated 8 per cent by cold rolling.

"This metal," says Dr. Coffman's report, "affords flexibility of protection against a variety of corrosive agencies, a fact that will no doubt create many uses other than as roofing and siding for building construction. Excellent pipe line protection should be provided. Paneling for a large number of purposes, fireproof material for fire doors and the manufacture of novelties also come within the scope of possible applications."

Various Imitations.

The felt lining can be saturated and covered with the new plastic, which imitate anything from jewels and silk to various woods. These coatings can be lacquered or painted. The coated steel is said to lose its "ring" when struck a blow.

Answering a question about fur coating, Dr. W. A. Hamor, assistant director of the institute, says: "Fur probably can be attached to steel by use of such a low melting point alloy as Wood's metal or Rose's metal, as an adhesive.

"We have had no reason whatsoever to attach fur to metal. If we were planning an investigation we would be decidedly unoptimistic regarding the possibility of producing a piled fur surface, unless it would be a furred skin that would be attached to the metal."

COALITION RULE PLAN DEFERS GREEK CRISIS

been threatening to resign unless negotiations through the League of Nations for a new foreign loan and for a five-year postponement of Greece's debt payments are successful.

Last night the premier was said to have delayed his resignation as a result of telegrams received from the ministers of finance and foreign affairs.

He issued a message to the Nation today, forecasting the triumphant emergence of Greece from the present economic depression regardless of whether the new loan is negotiated. He also said that an economic reconstruction program under which Greece would be able to resume foreign obligations after five years had been drafted and would be carried out by a new coalition government based on the widest possible national representation.

Many political observers, however, were of the opinion that the Venizelos regime, which was reorganized in December, 1930, would be forced out within another week or so. They said that public confidence in the cabinet had been shattered by the present critical situation and that business had been brought to a standstill.

The general opinion was that a series of politico-military cabinets might follow the resignation of Venizelos, and that, eventually, the country would return to monarchical government or to a dictatorship under Gen. Theodorus Pangalos, who seized power by armed force in 1925, and ruled as a dictator for a few months.

He was overthrown, but in October, 1930, he again planned a coup d'etat, which was frustrated by the government. Gen. Pangalos and many of his followers were arrested.

In May, 1931, a former aid of Gen. Pangalos was arrested on charges of attempting to dynamite government buildings and start an uprising.

The Greek monarchy was overthrown by popular vote in 1924.

Four Capital Executives To Attend Water Parley

Cumberland, Md., March 20 (A.P.). Three officials of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and one of the District of Columbia Water Department will have prominent parts in the sixth annual conference of the Maryland-Delaware Water and Sewerage Association here April 12 and 13, according to Harry R. Hall, deputy chief engineer of the commission, who is president of the 1932 conference.

Carl A. Hechmer, engineer of maintenance and operation, will discuss the use of activated carbon in taste elimination. Robert B. Morse, chief engineer, is a member of the conference program committee. Maj. J. B. Gordon, sanitary engineer of the District of Columbia, will speak on the effects of discharging industrial wastes into sewers.

Dr. Louis C. Purser, 77, Scholar, Dies in Dublin

Dublin, March 20 (U.P.).—Dr. Louis Claude Purser, 77, former vice provost of Trinity College, Dublin, and distinguished scholar, died tonight.

He held several honorary literary degrees, including degrees from Oxford, Glasgow and Durham Universities. He formerly was vice president of the Royal Irish Academy and had written many classical works. He was a bachelor.

2 Killed in Gun Fight At Dance Hall in Texas

San Antonio, Tex., March 20 (A.P.). Elvious Hicks, 52, sheriff of Bandera County, and Ben Clark, 42, rancher, were killed in a gun fight today outside a dance hall near Bandera. Billy Burns, deputy sheriff, was charged with the killing of Clark following a special court of inquiry. Hicks and Burns recently had raided Clark's ranch and arrested him after seizing a still and mash.

Because of tension in the crowd surrounding the courthouse at Bandera, six special deputy sheriffs and two Texas Rangers remained on duty during the court of inquiry hearing.

FOES OF BROOKHART IN IOWA SPOTLIGHT

Four Seek Senator's Place; Hoover Is Certain of Solid Delegation.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 20 (A.P.). With Iowa's 25 delegates to the Republican national convention "tucked away" for President Hoover, interest in the party's State convention here Tuesday was expected today to center around the field opposing United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart.

Virtually all county caucuses have voted to instruct their delegates to send Hoover men to the national convention at Chicago. As a result, ratification of administration supporters for district and delegates-at-large is expected without serious contest.

The convention will take no part in the senatorial primary fight, but candidates and their friends will be on hand in an effort to corral support.

Four men already are opposing Brookhart, who has independent tendencies, for the Republican nomination in the June 6 primary. There is a strong possibility that there will be another entry—Henry Field, of Shenandoah, seedman and operator of a radio station.

Field is expected to announce his decision tomorrow, when he arrives with a group of friends. Some time ago he said he was not interested, but since then he has been urged to enter the race. His decision, however, will depend upon promises of support.

Brookhart's present opponents are George Cosson, of Des Moines, former attorney general; Louis H. Cook, of Des Moines, chairman of the State board of assessment and review, and William Galloway and L. E. Eichelberger, both of Waterloo.

If Field is a candidate, observers say he would be strongest in the rural districts, where Brookhart has always polled his greatest strength. Brookhart will be here tomorrow and is expected to stay in town for the convention.

3,500 Ask Fleet, Slayer, Be Spared

Petition Seeking Commutation to Life Term to Be Given Pollard.

Winchester, Va., March 20 (A.P.).—A petition carrying 3,500 signatures asking that the death penalty imposed on Lawrence Fleet, 18-year-old slayer of William F. Keller, be commuted to life imprisonment, will be presented to Gov. Pollard this week.

Harry F. Kern, Fleet's attorney, will head the small delegation which will present the petition. In the group will be a number of local women opposed to capital punishment. With the petition will be presented a letter from the Society of Friends, written at the direction of the Fairfax quarterly meeting in Washington, urging executive clemency for the condemned youth.

Fleet, in entering a guilty plea to the murder charge at the February term of court, exonerated John Wallace, jr., who came with him from Baltimore on the night of the slaying. Charges against Wallace were dropped. The youth is sentenced to be electrocuted April 28.

Chicago Gangster Slain and Dumped

Ride Victim Identified as Minor Hoodlum; Slugs Riddle Body.

Chicago, March 20 (A.P.).—Another victim was found today in "gangland's graveyard." He was identified as Frank Battaglia, a minor hoodlum and member of the "42-gang."

His body, riddled with bullets, was found in the southwest part of Cook County, the vicinity into which no less than 24 other underworld characters have gone in years past to a gangster's death. Among them were "Dingbat" Oberta and his bodyguard, Sam ("The Shadow") Malaga, who were mowed down by an underworld execution squad March 5, 1930.

Battaglia, said by police to have been an alcohol cooker, was once indicted for murder, but the case was stricken from the docket. Persons living near where the body was found heard shots last night and saw an automobile speed away from the scene. They waited, however, for daylight before investigating.

DE VALERA'S POLICY ALARMS BELFAST

arrest of the assailants. Viscount Craigavon visited in a hospital the two men wounded in the attack to express his personal sympathy.

The suggestion that if President De Valera's government abolishes the oath to the King of England and retains land annuities which England regards as payable to her the matter would be referred to the League of Nations at Geneva was viewed here with general skepticism.

Dublin, Irish Free State, March 20 (A.P.).—Eamon de Valera, new President of the Irish Free State, today disclaimed for his people any responsibility if, as Great Britain has warned him, disorders arise out of his intention to withhold allegiance and land annuities from England.

"At this stage, I shall only say that if the bitterness and differences are revived, the fault will not lie with the Irish people," the president said in reply to the tacit warning of the British government.

That warning, uttered by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, in a speech at Birmingham, England, Friday, was directed against De Valera's intention to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British Crown and retain the land annuities which were paid, under the late Cosgrave government, to England.

PLUMMER, SHIPPING BOARD LEADER, DIES

gaged in the practice of admiralty law. In his earlier years he engaged in newspaper work and was at one time the publisher of the Bath (Me.) Independent.

Shipping was a specialty with him all during his life. His youth was spent in the shipyards near his home and as a young man he served for a time as a sailor. He always liked to refer to the fact that from the time his ancestor, Francis Plummer, settled in Old Newbury in 1633, no member of his branch of the family had ever lived more than 10 miles from the sea.

In addition to his widow, Lillian, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Ada C. Lane, of Woodfords, Me.; Mrs. Ella Pease, of Tennants Harbor, Me., and Mrs. George Currier, of Portland, Me. No funeral arrangements have been made.

REVOLT BY FANATICS FORECAST IN MEXICO

Secretary General of State Warns National Officials of Threatened Uprising.

Mexico City, March 20 (U.P.).—A warning of an armed uprising by "fanatics" in the State of Queretaro has been sent to the federal government, according to a telegram sent today to the newspaper Universal signed by Roman Badillo, secretary general of Queretaro.

The message to the newspaper read:

"Today I telegraphed the president of the republic, the secretary of war and the secretary of interior as follows:

"'Police officials advise this government (Queretaro) that a group of fanatics have started an armed uprising with the intention of attacking revolutionary (government) institutions. Since this state government has 20,000 organized peasants, we request your orders for coordinating them with federal forces to combat the fanatics and defend the revolutionary government.'

"I send you the above by the instructions of the governor of this state."

Saturnino Osornio is the governor of Queretaro.

Chile Fixes Wheat Prices.

Santiago, Chile, March 20 (A.P.).—Daily price fixing for the wheat market has been ordered by the government and quotations now are being transmitted nightly by radio to all parts of the country. This step was taken to prevent further "corners" in wheat here and in the south, and other moves of speculators, which had sent prices high on several occasions. The Chilean wheat price always has been much higher than relative world prices, such as those in Buenos Aires, Chicago and Liverpool. A bounty is paid, in addition, on all wheat exported, of which there probably will be little this year.

Punta Arenas Cheered by Wool.

Punta Arenas, Chile, March 20 (A.P.).—Forgetting the controversy over the city's name, which officially now is Punta Arenas, but also is still being given as Magallanes, citizens of the province are rejoicing over the large production of wool for the season, a total of about 10,000,000 kilos being estimated. Much has been shipped to markets controlled by English companies which are interested in the industry here. This cold, bleak province, whose capital is the world's southernmost city of size, expects next year to make another substantial increase in wool output.

Colombians Cheer Scientist.

Papayam, Colombia, March 20 (A.P.). Dr. Cesar Uribe, rector of Cauca University, who was threatened by the townspeople when he first installed classes in social hygiene, returned from Bogota today to receive one of the most enthusiastic greetings ever given in this ancient city. The whole town was decorated in his honor and Dr. Uribe, who formerly was a professor of medicine at Harvard University, was carried to the 400-year-old university here on the shoulders of students and citizens. He announced that his classes would be open to any one.

Chilean Cabinet Still in Office.

Santiago, Chile, March 20 (A.P.).—President Juan Esteban Montero denied as "ridiculous" today published reports that his cabinet had resigned. The story was printed last night in a newspaper opposed to the government. The political situation has been delicate on account of squabbles within the government party, but Premier Mora telegraphed to all provincial capitals that there was no ministerial crisis.

Cuba Eases Tourist Rules.

Havana, Cuba, March 20 (A.P.).—The government has announced that tourists will find it easier to leave Cuba hereafter. No military passes will be required of reembarking persons henceforth, and only immigration department certificates will be demanded. If this should be lost only a certificate from a steamer consignee will be necessary.

Columbia Tax Change Sought.

Ibague, Colombia, March 20 (A.P.). The Legislature of Tolima Province adopted a resolution today asking the national government to revise the liquor and tobacco taxes. It said the new high national imposts had cut Tolima's revenue 60 per cent. Legislators asked for taxation on a provincial basis.

Cubans Gain Free Speech by Force.

Havana, Cuba, March 20 (A.P.).—Six armed men forced their way into radio station CMCF this afternoon, held up the staff of performers, and berated the government for eight minutes. The six unidentified impromptu broadcasters fled before the police arrived.

Rioting Students Seized in London

Demonstrators Fought by Police After Cambridge Boat Race Victory.

London, March 20 (U.P.).—Many students were arrested early today when they celebrated Cambridge's boat race victory over Oxford by staging the wildest scenes since the armistice in the West End of London.

A detail of 150 policemen around the famous statue of Eros in Piccadilly Circus was hard pressed and forced to use batons freely to turn back repeated charges by the students, who attempted to climb the statue, emulating a New Year's Eve celebrator, who was later fined $600.

The revelry lasted all night and great crowds blocked traffic in the streets. Two persons were injured when fifteen students, crowded into a tiny two-seated automobile, ran onto the sidewalk at Leicester Square, forcing the crowd to flee into the subways and telephone booths for safety.

Army Officer Is Killed And Girl Hurt in Crash

Oklahoma City, March 20 (A.P.).—Lieut. Col. John M. Pruyn, U. S. Infantry, was killed and Miss Mary Stewart, of Oklahoma City, slightly injured in the overturning of their automobile near Arcadia, Okla., yesterday.

Col. Pruyn, assistant chief of staff of the Ninety-fifth Reserve Division, was assigned from San Francisco in October, 1930. He previously served in the Hawaiian Islands. Survivors include his widow, a son and daughter, all of San Francisco.

The Graf was under command of Dr. Hugo Eckener and carried nine passengers and 220 pounds of freight and mail. A landing at Pernambuco was planned for some time tomorrow with the return voyage scheduled for Friday.

The trip is the first of four planned during March, April and May, and it was announced before departure that there would be a second series of trips to South America during the late summer and early autumn.

The Graf will take its usual route across southern France to Gibraltar and along the African coast to Dakar, and thence across the south Atlantic.

12 HURT IN BLASTS AT SCHOOL BUILDING

Explosions at Springfield, Ill., Follow Series of Alleged Incendiary Fires.

Springfield, Ill., March 20 (A.P.).—Twelve men were injured tonight in three explosions which rocked the Springfield Public High School Building, coming as an aftermath of a series of allegedly incendiary fires in other central Illinois towns.

Firemen and nearby residents rushed into the building after the first explosion, believing it had been caused by bursting boilers. They found the boilers were intact and were starting to leave when the second blast came.

Investigators from the State fire marshal's office said the first blast broke gas mains in the basement and started a small fire. Escaping gas was ignited by the fire to cause the other two explosions. They said they believed the first explosion might have been of incendiary origin.

Physicians said four of the injured might die. They are Harry Durham, assistant fire chief of Springfield; Capt. Charles Gaessler, of the fire department; John Rapp, a fireman, and James Brown, a high school student.

About $1,000,000 damage was caused and two persons killed by the allegedly incendiary fires recently in neighborning towns. The deaths occurred at Lincoln, Ill., where the business district was virtually wiped out. At Bloomington, Ill., 60 miles north of here, several public buildings were destroyed and an attempt was made to burn an Illinois Normal University building. Police guards were established at all public buildings in Urbana after mysterious fires there.

Mrs. Biddle Safe In Alaska Refuge

Society Matron, Storm-Bound, Asks Plane to Assist Her.

Philadelphia, March 20 (A.P.).—Mrs. Edward M. Biddle, socially prominent Philadelphia matron, who went to Alaska last December to study women's life in the Far North, may be thwarted in part of her plans by the elements.

She was reported to have mushed to the home of Fannie Quigley, famous pioneer woman of the Kantishna district, January 12 to spend a couple of weeks and to have become snowbound there. She has asked to have a plane sent to take her out.

There is no danger in her situation, apparently, but if she is unable to get out soon she may miss spectacles she much desired to see. She still has several calls to make and much territory to cover before going to an outpost on the Yukon, where she planned to watch the spectacular sudden break-up of the winter's ice.

Her husband, a lawyer, said today that he had not heard from her recently, but that he was not worried.

"It quite evidently is simply a problem in transportation," he said.

Powers Protest On Memel Regime

Lithuanian Government Is Told New Directorate Is Unacceptable.

Kovno, Lithuania, March 20 (U.P.). The signatories of the Memel statute, guaranteeing the status of the former German territory, stated in a verbal note to the Lithuanian government last night that formation of the new Memel directorate, headed by M. Simmat, was contrary to assurances which the Lithuanian government gave the League of Nations.

It was declared that the signatories, including Great Britain and France, would seek a decision from the World Court at The Hague unless the new directorate is accepted by a majority of the population of Memel.

The note arose out of controversy over Memel beginning with the arrest of Otto Boetscher, pro-German mayor of the territory. Memel was surrendered by Germany after the World War and later seized by Lithuania, but in 1924 it was given a municipal diet under an autonomous form of government and a Lithuanian governor.

New Alien Bureau in Russia Will Keep Out Job-Seekers

Will Supervise Entry and Departure of All Foreigners During Five-Year Plan Ending in 1937; Accommodations Not Available.

Moscow, March 20 (A.P.).—The government of Joseph Stalin today decided to set up a new immigration bureau, under the labor commissariat, to supervise the entry and departure of all foreigners during the new five-year plan, ending in 1937.

This decision followed by less than a week announcement that foreigners coming to Russia merely for curiosity or to hunt jobs would no longer be granted tourist visas. It was explained today that the new bureau's chief function would be to keep out those wanderers, because no accommodations are available for them.

A. M. Tsikjon, the labor commissar, announced today that a group of Americans, numbering less than 100, who came here recently on temporary tourist visas hoping to find jobs, would be permitted to remain, and would get government aid in finding work.

Meanwhile, the jobless Americans who have run out of funds are being supplied with meals and lodging by Intourist, the official Russian tourist bureau.

Tsikjon added that in the future foreigners who seek entry on tourist visas in the hope that they can stay will be vigorously discouraged, and tourist visas will be issued only for short periods and provide two-way travel as a mandatory factor.

The labor commissar pointed out that those having a definite agreement of employment before entering Russia will not be subject to such restrictions. Tsikjon inferred it was officially felt here that travel agencies abroad, including Intourist, were to blame in some cases by encouraging job seekers to come here on temporary tourist visas and assuring them of quick employment. Hereafter such travelers will be sold only round-trip tickets.

King George and His Court To Forego Visit to Windsor

London, March 20 (U.P.).—King George and his court are not going to leave London this Easter, for reasons of health and economy.

It is the custom for the court to move to Windsor for the first holiday of the year, but this year the king has decided to remain at Buckingham Palace.

Well informed quarters believe that the king's doctors advised him that the weather at Windsor Castle, so near to the River Thames, would not be good for him at this time of the year. They recalled that when the king paid a visit there early last summer he contracted a cold, a serious matter taken in conjunction with his illness in 1928.

On the other hand, the king desires to hold four courts and a garden party this summer, as usual, and as he has voluntarily reduced his income by £50,000, he must economize somewhere to meet the expense of those functions.

Moving the court from one royal residence to another is costly. All the expense is borne by the king himself, including even the transportation of his servants and their baggage. There is also the cost of opening up Windsor Castle, staffing and heating it.

In addition, when the court is at Windsor, the king and queen often have to come to London to attend some function. That means bringing servants and carriages back and reopening Buckingham Palace.

Roosevelt's Agent Confident in Maine

Farley Assured of Support for New Yorker by Democratic Chiefs.

Portland, Me., March 20 (A.P.).—A five-hour conference with leading Democrats here today sent James A. Farley back to New York tonight confident he may depend on the support of Maine's eleven delegates to the Democratic national convention for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and unshaken in his conviction that Roosevelt will be nominated on the first ballot.

Farley, chairman of the New York State Democratic committee and liaison man of Roosevelt's campaign for the presidential nomination, described his mission in this State to be to "impress upon the Democrats of Maine the desirability of the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt as the Democratic candidate for President."

Roosevelt, he said, is the "only man the Democrats can nominate who will be absolutely sure of election."

The 75 Democrats who greeted Farley here assured him Roosevelt's candidacy was arousing enthusiasm in this State. Farley said he would not, however, seek an instructed delegation in the Democratic State convention March 28 and 29. It has not been the custom of the Democratic party in Maine to instruct its delegations to the national convention, although in 1928 after a bitter fight in the State convention, the party departed from its practice by binding its delegation for Smith.

Jewish Education Group Extends Member Drive

The membership drive of the Jewish Education Association will be extended for ten more days, according to an announcement made last night by Paul Himmelfarb, chairman of the drive committee, at a meeting of the association held in the Jewish Community Center. Inclement weather and the sickness of a number of members participating in the drive was given as the reason for the extension.

Alex Koplin, a local attorney, addressed the meeting.

U. S. Woman Stirs Hindu Temple Riot

Disciple of Gandhi Is Ejected by Priest for "Polluting" Edifice.

Bombay, India, March 20 (U.P.).—An American woman who has adopted native dress and customs because of her admiration for the Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, caused a small riot and much trouble today at the Hindu Temple of Dwarka.

The woman, Nila Cram Cook, who has been known as Mela Naghini Devi (the blue serpent goddess) since she became a disciple of Gandhi, donned her native costume and went to the temple to worship.

The other worshipers were startled and the priests forced her to leave, declaring the temple had been polluted. The other worshipers left immediately and services were suspended. It will require 24 hours to purify the temple, the priests said. The ceremony costs $75.

PALM SUNDAY RITE OBSERVED IN ROME

Bresca Family Again Makes Offering to Pope; Entry of Christ Is Theme.

Rome, March 20 (A.P.).—Christ's triumphant entry into Jerusalem was commemorated here today with the rich, picturesque Palm Sunday ceremonies traditional in this chief city of the Catholic world.

In the Vatican the Bresca family of Genoa, following a 350-year-old custom, presented Pope Pius XI with elaborately decorated palms. This custom began because one member of the Bresca family had originally disobeyed a Pope.

Pope Sixtus V, who reigned from 1585 to 1590, was directing the raising of the 360-ton Egyptian Obelisk which still stands in the center of St. Peter's Square. He had given orders that any one who broke silence during this delicate work should suffer death.

Silence Is Broken.

At a certain point in the operation the ropes pulling up the obelisk slackened. The immense monument swung dangerously over the heads of the crowd, which kept silent ,however, because of the pontiff's order.

Suddenly some one in the crowd cried, "Throw water on the ropes!"

The engineers leaped at the suggestion. The ropes became taut again, and the obelisk rose safely to an upright position.

Pope Sixtus' soldiers seized the man who had shouted. He turned out to be a young sailor named Bresca. Trembling with fear, he appeared before the pontiff. Sixtus not only forgave him for breaking silence, but asked him to name his own reward.

Monopoly Is Chosen.

Bresca then chose the monopoly for himself and descendants of providing the palms each Palm Sunday for St. Peter's and the Pope's household. Each Palm Sunday since then some member of the Bresca family has gained a sum of money from this privilege.

In St. Peter's today Cardinal Facelli, high priest of the Bascilica, celebrated high mass and led a procession through the big bronze doors of the edifice, in commemoration of Christ's procession into Jerusalem.

A large number of Americans in Rome for Easter attended today's services. They saw the statutes and crucifixes in all the churches covered with black and purple cloth, in sign of mourning.

5 MEN HURT AS OHIO COAL STRIKERS RIOT

recalling alleged intimidating of working miners and threatened destruction of property, the governor ordered units of the National Guard to be prepared to move to the district immediately in the event further contempt of the law is shown, or the continuance of acts which threaten the loss of life and property."

Right to Strike Admitted.

While observing that "those striking have the right to strike and to picket," the governor declared, "those who wish to work and make a living for their families also have the right to do so.

"I believe that most of the miners involved in this strike are law abiding citizens, but I know that there is a sufficient minority to cause great trouble, whose persistent unlawful acts stamp them as professional agitators."

The uniform scale, which the operators said was necessary to meet competition from other States, was put into effect after he mine owners declined to deal with scale committees representing the United Mine Workers. Following the strike, two representatives of the National Miners Union arrived in the district for organization purposes. The National Miners Union is opposed to the United Mine Workers, which claims the support of a majority of the Hocking Valley miners.

The State has kept National Guard observers in the field since the strike started, the number now totaling nineteen. Gov. White has asked mine union leaders to meet with him tomorrow in an effort to settle the dispute.

Palm Sunday Services Lure Spanish Catholics

Madrid, March 20 (A.P.).—Catholics throughout Spain attended the customary Palm Sunday services in the churches today while the country generally prepared to observe the first holy week of the new republic without official government participation.

The balconies of houses were covered, in accordance with tradition, with palms sold by the poor. Religious street parades planned for today were suspended, however, in several towns of Catalonia and the Basque-Navarre provinces to avoid possible disorders. The ceremonies were held in other parts of Spain.

COAL MINE STRIKE BOMBING RENEWED

Families of Two Idle Workers Escape Injury in New Dynamiting.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 20 (A.P.). Dynamiting broke out anew early today in the week-old strike of insurgent miners of the upper and lower Pennsylvania anthracite region. A stick of dynamite, exploding on their porch, blew the families of Mr. and Mrs. James de Rosa and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clara out of their beds in Pittston. None was hurt.

The charge exploded downward, demolishing the porch and rousing the entire neighborhood.

Although De Rosa, owner of the place, has not worked in the mines for five years and Clara has been idle for months, police lay the attack to strikers. They believe the house was attacked either through mistaken identity or as a gesture of warning to others in the region.

Aside from this attack, the entire strike area, embracing Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties on the north and Northumberland, Schuylkill and part of Columbia on the south, was quiet today. Mines are always idle Sundays.

Throughout the region, most of the mines that worked or where strikes occurred last week were scheduled to open tomorrow morning, and police were laying plans to assure safe access to all miners who wanted to work. Mine officials declared they were sure of a full quota.

Several locals in both regions met last night and today. They were reported as voting to work on the schedules which the operators ordered.

Several speakers declared the strike was "foolhardy and suicidal."

The strike was called last Monday in an effort to force operators to equalize working time at all mines. It is developing into a test of strength between the insurgents and the administration forces of the United Mine Workers, whose officers refuse to sanction the use of force in inducing the operation of more mines. The union leaders contend they have no way to force owners to operate mines which they wish to keep idle.

WOMAN HANGS SELF AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Irving Lee Bragg, 35, to Be Buried Tomorrow at Roanoke.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at St. John's Episcopal Church, Roanoke, Va., for Mrs. Irving Lee Bragg, 35, who was found shortly before noon yesterday hanging from a limb of a tree in a grove a short distance from Gordonsville, Va., where she was sent by her mother, Mrs. Samuel Reed Calhoun, Chevy Chase, Md., to recuperate after a prolonged illness.

Mrs. Bragg had been in a highly nervous and despondent condition for the last three months, and on Friday evening went to Gordonsville to a convalescent home for treatment. Friday night she is said to have attempted to take her life through electrocution by contact with the electric current while standing in a bath tub at the nursing home, but was unsuccessful as the fuse blew out.

She was carefully watched, but she managed to escape the vigilance of her nurses early Saturday morning, taking an electric cord with her. A search was organized, but beyond the fact that she was seen walking along the highway on the outskirts of the town soon after her disapparance, no trace of her was found until the body was discovered hanging from a limb, with the extension cord wound tightly around her neck. The young farmer, Curtis Stitcher, who found the body notified authorities, and a certificate of suicide was issued.

Mrs. Bragg was active in church work, having instructed a Sunday school class in the All Saints Church when in good health.

She is survived by her mother and two children, Martha Truxton Bragg, aged 10, and Irving Lee, jr., aged 12. She was the widow of Irving Lee Bragg, who died in November, 1924.

Authority on Yale Lore Is Dead at 66

Eddie Moriarty, Known to Alumni and Students, Taken by Death.

New Haven, Conn., March 20 (A.P.).—Eddie Moriarty, 66, reputed to know more of Yale tradition than any other man, is dead.

To Yale graduates of the last 50 years this sad news means the "Sage of Broadway," who could reminisce so entertainingly on the Ell past, will no longer welcome them to this city.

To undergraduates it means the popular "Mayor of Broadway," grocer and community leader, will never again be the center of an interested group attracted to his establishment by his personality, and to newspapermen it means their unfailing source of information of Yale athletics records is gone.

Edward J. Moriarty died early today in a local hospital three days after he had collapsed in the presiding officer's chair at the annual banquet of the Knights of St. Patrick. His collapse occurred just after he had opened the affair the twenty-seventh year.

Two Kentuckians Die in Gun Fights

Officials Say Shootings Are Not Linked to Harlan Labor Dispute.

Harlan, Ky., March 20 (A.P.).—Two men were killed in pistol fights in Harlan County today, but authorities said neither killing had any connection with the coal field labor troubles.

James Allen, 17, was shot fatally at Crummies Creek, 12 miles from here, in what officers said was a fight over a girl. Earl Moore and Tom Blackwell were arrested and held in jail and Frank Shackleford, 16, was being sought tonight. Officers said Moore and Blackwell told them Shackleford shot Allen. Shackleford's father told authorities he would turn his son over to them.

Hugh Rickard, 35, was shot fatally at Lynch, a coal community, and Raymond Cline, 35, was arrested by Lynch police and brought to jail here for questioning in connection with the shooting. Cline refused to talk. Authorities said they had been unable to learn the cause of the shooting.

Two British Fliers Start Record Attempts Today

London, March 20 (U.P.).—Two of Great Britain's best known distance fliers, C. W. A. Scott and J. A. Mollison, will depart simultaneously tomorrow in search of new world records.

Mollison, following a new route down the west African coast, hopes to fly to Cape Town in four days, breaking the record of Miss Peggy Salaman, the London debutante. Scott will depart again for Australia in an effort to break his own nine-day record for the flight.

British Rulers Reveal Their Favorite Music

London, March 20 (A.P.).—Queen Mary's favorite hymn is "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," she told the leader of a Salvation Army band today. When the band, led by a conductor who formerly was a sausage maker, came to play beneath the window of Buckingham Palace while the king and queen were at lunch, Queen Mary sent out a request that the hymn be played. It meant more to her than any other, she said.

ing George asked especially for "King of Kings" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Conductor Twichin played the latter as a cornet solo. Afterward he was invited into the palace and was introduced to the king and queen and to their granddaughters, the little Princesses Margaret and Elizabeth.

Reserve Officers Ask Hoover to Be Speaker

Pittsburgh, March 20 (A.P.).—President Hoover has been invited to address the annual convention of the Reserve Officers Association of the United States, to be held in Pittsburgh, April 24 to 29. The President has not indicated whether or not he will accept. Other speakers will be Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, and Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding officer of the Third Corps Area.

With the exception of the American Legion convention, the reserve officers' meeting is the largest of any held in the United States. More than 2,000 delegates are expected to attend.

Bank of Italy Reduces Rate.

Rome, March 20 (A.P.).—The Bank of Italy reduced its discount rate today from 7 per cent to 6 per cent, effective tomorrow.

Tardieu Economic Plan Is Advanced

Roumanian Leaders Say Central Europeans Will Confer.

Bucharest, Roumania, March 20 (U. P.).—The plan advanced by French Premier Andre Tardieu, providing for a Danubian economic union to alleviate the present crisis, was advanced today by declarations of the government leaders of Roumania, ally of France.

The government announced that the chambers of commerce of the central European countries were ready to confer at Innsbruck on April 16 to discuss the French plan. The chambers of commerce of France, England, Germany and Italy also will be represented.

Meanwhile the German minister informed the Roumanian government that Germany was prepared immediately to make effective a most favored nation treaty with Roumania. This was regarded in some quarters as a German maneuver against the Danubian union proposal. Previously, in replying to the French proposal, Germany indirectly had disapproved of the plan.

South Carolina Pilot Is Killed in Air Crash

Columbia, S. C., March 20 (A.P.).—Grayson S. Douglas, of Chesterfield, an inspector of the State highway department, was instantly killed this afternoon when his airplane plunged to earth near the Municipal Airport.

Witnesses said Douglas, who was flying alone, apparently was approaching for a landing when the plane fell from a height of about 200 feet.

THE TAX BILL REVOLT.

In pressing for the enactment of the revenue bill the Democratic leaders of the House face their most severe test of this session. A widespread revolt against the sales tax has developed under the leadership of the New York insurgent, Representative LaGuardia. The movement is fraught with grave danger to the Government, as well as to the Democratic party.

The game of the rebellious Democrats and insurgents is to defeat the sales tax on manufactured articles by substituting other measures. Their attempt to raise the surtax on large incomes to wartime heights was successful, and the normal tax on net income of more than $8,000 was boosted from 5 to 7 per cent. In the highest bracket the income tax thus imposed would amount to 72 per cent. That is but a little short of confiscation. It is futile to expect taxpayers to leave their income vulnerable to such a tax. Under this confiscatory measure large incomes would either go into tax-exempt securities or into improvements on property, thus avoiding the tax. The frenzied insurgents have not reckoned with the law of diminishing returns.

Attempts will also be made to raise the estate or inheritance tax. No doubt that can be done without unfairness, if the levy is not made so drastic that it cripples a business or an industry passing from father to son. The power to tax, as the Supreme Court has so impressively said, is the power to destroy. Previous experience with excessive levies of many kinds indicates that the destructive element frequently outweighs the benefits that are obtained by the Government.

Because excessive levies are deceiving and unstable, they can not be depended upon to balance the budget. If all the great incomes that may be made in 1932 were confiscated outright they would not fill the hole that has been created in the Federal revenue of the last two years. The gravest danger in the present situation in the House is that the budget might be left unbalanced because of an overestimation of the productivity of these excessive levies on incomes, &c.

A new source of revenue is imperative. It is doubtful whether the insurgents can conjure up enough in nuisance taxes and excess penalties for wealth to bring in the amount needed. Certainly the increases that were approved in the stampede of Friday and Saturday are not enough to replace the sales tax. When the final test on that provision comes the House may adopt it, as well as the higher income and estate taxes, and the task of bringing moderation out of that excess would be left to the Senate.

The Democratic leaders of the House have manifested a good deal of courage in writing and sponsoring the tax bill. They have weighed the problem carefully, from the viewpoint of both the taxpayer and the Government. They are entitled to the support of their party in the House in writing this measure into law. If the Democratic-insurgent revolt upsets this measure, it will be a severe blow to the party's prestige. The Democratic majority in the House is charged with the responsibility of balancing the budget and preserving the Government's credit. Revolting Democrats ought to think twice before they betray their leaders and advertise their party as utterly irresponsible on the eve of a presidential election.

"BUSINESS AND HARD FACT."

Ambassador Claudel, of France, appeals to the people of the United States to view the problem of war debts and reparations in the spirit of "business and hard fact," rather than in the spirit of "abstract right." That is good common sense. Any spokesman for America might reply to him that that has consistently been the attitude of the United States.

The debt funding agreements were based on the ability of each debtor to pay. Congress recognized that it was useless to try to compel a nation to pay to the point of bankruptcy. Hence, the debt of Italy was cut down to about 19 per cent of its value. Great Britain agreed to pay 80 per cent, and France about 50 per cent. If any contingency should make it impossible for the governments to live up to these agreements, they have the right temporarily to suspend the principal installments.

Good business logic demands that those agreements be left alone, unless it becomes impossible for any nation to redeem its pledge. Does Ambassdor Claudel claim that France is unable to pay the installments on her debt to the United States? France is in a much better position now than at the time the funding agreement was signed. "Business and hard fact" eliminate from consideration any readjustment of France's present obligation.

"Business and hard fact" might make it necessary to reconsider the obligation of a government in desperate financial straits. Would France ask the United States to make such an adjustment and then itself refuse to make an adjustment with Germany?

DANUBE UNION BLOCKED.

Premier Tardieu's project for an economic federation among the Danubian states seems to be on the rocks, even though it has reached only preliminary stages of discussion. Political and economic jealousies among the great powers have blocked every attempt to reduce customs barriers in Europe. Apparently this project for an economic bloc in Central Europe is to suffer the same fate.

Central European countries have been severely handicapped from an economic standpoint ever since the war. The Austro-Hungarian Empire was destroyed by the Versailles Treaty. Now all of Europe recognizes the necessity of razing the tariff barriers that were set up by the tiny countries carved out of the old empire. The economic crisis of last year originated in Central Europe. Little hope is held out for the recovery of Europe until steps are taken to relieve the desperate situation in the valley of the Danube.

The Tardieu plan, which is said to have originated with Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, would include Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Roumania in a preferential tariff union. France is anxious to relieve her political allies in Central Europe. The French electorate is beginning to feel that the government has gone far enough in extending credit to these countries for political reasons. Britain, too, fears for the stability of her investments in Central Europe. Hence, they stand together in fostering the economic federation.

Germany, on the other hand, sees in this situation a chance for revenge on France for the defeat of the Austro-German customs union. Berlin has unequivocally rejected Premier Tardieu's suggestion. In any circumstances Germany would insist on the inclusion of Bulgaria in the federation. Germany also takes the position that some of the large commercial nations should be included in any such preferential tariff group so that the Danubian countries would have a market for their surplus agricultural crops. A still more persuasive argument is that the federation would restrict Germany's export market. German trade has undergone a drastic shrinkage during the last few months. If Britain and France insist upon a measure that might wipe out the favorable balance of trade for the Reich, how can they expect to collect reparations?

Italy also has raised obstacles in the path of the Danubian federation. Premier Mussolini hopes to make arrangements that will be more advantageous to Italy. It is improbable that the Central European countries can arrange an economic federation without the aid and sponsorship of the great powers. Thus the economic rehabilitation of Europe is blocked by political maneuvers. Even in the face of a crisis, the European powers are unable to submerge their jealousy and distrust.

ARE WOMEN GOOD DRIVERS?

During recent years when so many women have been seated behind the steering wheel the question has frequently arisen as to their proficiency as drivers in comparison with men. It was here in the District of Columbia that some of the first figures were given out on the subject. Five years ago it was announced that women, at that time numbering 15 per cent of the licensed operators, were responsible for only 6 per cent of the nonfatal accidents and barely more than 2 per cent of the fatal accidents.

This was widely hailed as a vindicating tribute to female skill in the manipulation of the modern juggernaut. Then San Francisco came along with the information that the 20 per cent represented by its women drivers was charged with only 5 per cent of 1,000 fatalities investigated. One-fifth of the drivers in Connecticut are women, but a survey showed them responsible for less than 10 per cent of the accidents.

Amid the general acclaim of fair sex dexterity Prof. Viteles, of the psychology division at the University of Pennsylvania, and it must be admitted, aided and abetted by a female assistant, Helen M. Gardner, cried, hold, let us examine these figures. First, said this cold, unchivalrous son of science, the evidence fails to include a comparison of accidents per mile of driving, and he points out that the number of miles covered by male drivers is considerably greater than the average driven by women.

Continuing the unfavorable comparison, the professor says that men operate under more unsatisfactory driving conditions, more of them driving in heavy traffic and in stormy weather. Furthermore, only male drivers operate trucks and other heavy vehicles, while it is probable that the mechanical conditions of cars driven by women is better than those driven by men, who also more often operate second-hand cars. In a word, the professor's delving showed that if women drive only 100 miles to 1,000 miles traveled by men comparison of accidents figured solely in relation to number of drivers' licenses does not prove very much.

Seeking a more equitable basis of comparison than simply the number of licenses held by men and women, the investigating professors fell upon the reports of a taxicab company in a large Eastern city that employed both male and female operators. The women were given the slight advantage of new cabs and somewhat easier districts, but the showing is decidedly against them. Men who drove 28,432,000 miles had 7,311 accidents, or one for about every 4,000 miles. The women encountered 268 accidents in trips totaling 349,000 miles, or one for approximately every 1,303 miles.

It must be said to the credit of the women that the cost of accidents per thousand miles driven was only $2.68, while for the men it was $5.77. On the other hand, women are charged with overcautiousness at times, which causes accidents on the part of other drivers, but for which the women are not technically blamed. Although Prof. Viteles must be a brave man, it is not to be wondered at that he enlisted the protection of a female collaborator, for he sums up his investigation with the indictment that if an equal number of women drivers were put on the highways in the same types of machines they would be twice as likely as men to cause accidents.

Professor, how could you say such a thing?

Now that the House has imposed a tax of 65 per cent on $5,000,000 incomes, all that's necessary is to catch the bootleggers.

In taking steps to "soak the rich," congressmen will discover that Old Man Depression has beaten them to it.

The Filipinos are trying to secure independence before we ask them for their half-billion treasury surplus.

If Sol Bloom is willing why not add some propaganda, as Chicago suggests, to make 1932 also a buy-centennial?

"FATHER" OF NATIONAL DEFENSE

From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

National celebration of the Washington Bicentennial gives double timeliness to the reminder that the Father of His Country was also father of its national defense cause. Throughout his eight years' service, the first President of this republic patiently but persistently urged upon Congress the duty of "provision for the common defense." In one of his earliest addresses to Congress he declared himself "particularly anxious" that the establishment of "some uniform and effective system for the militia of the United States" should "receive as early attention as circumstances permit," holding it "a measure on which the honor, safety and well-being of our country so evidently and so essentially depend."

In his annual addresses to the Federal Legislature the need of adequate preparedness for defense was stressed again and again. "To be prepared for war," he pointed out in one of these, "is one of the most efficient means of preserving peace. A free people ought not only to be armed but disciplined, and their safety and interest require that they should promote such manufactories as tend to render them independent of others for essential, particularly military supplies." And again: "The safety of the United States under divine protection ought to rest on the basis of systematic and solid arrangements, exposed as little as possible to the hazards of fortuitous circumstances." And a year or two later:

"I can not recommend to your notice measures for the fulfillment of our duties to the rest of the world without again pressing upon you the necessity of placing ourselves in a condition of complete defense. The United States ought not to indulge a persuasion that, contrary to the order of human events, they will forever keep at a distance those painful appeals to arms with which the history of every other nation abounds. There is a rank due the United States among nations which will be withheld, if not absolutely lost, by the reputation of weakness. If we desire to avoid insult, we must be able to repel it; if we desire to secure peace, one of the most powerful instruments of our rising prosperity, it must be known at all times that we are ready for war." In his farewell address he urged his countrymen to "remember that timely disbursements to prepare for danger frequently prevent much greater disbursements to repel it;" and to "take care always to keep ourselves, by suitable establishments on a respectacle defensive posture."

The wisdom of Washington's continued appeals for adequate national defense has been demonstrated not only in his time, but in our own. And national neglect of his counsel on occasion has proven that "timely disbursements to prepare for danger" would have prevented "much greater disbursements to repel it." None of the policies he shaped for the republic has been sounder by the test of its experience and history than his advocacy of adequate national defense. We shall do well to remember and heed it so long at least as other nations go armed and "painful appeals to arms" persist to plague the world.

"Everywhere That Mary Went."

POST HASTE.

"Cease, rude Boreas, blustering railer!" Mr. Sirovich will give you the hook unless you realize it's Miss Spring's turn on the stage.

House members on Saturday were called runaways—and did Headmasters Crisp and Rainey talk to them like truant schoolboys!

No more effective means of retarding recovery could be found than taxing wealth into nontaxable securities, for then there would be neither revenue nor revived industry.

Substitute proposals for the sales tax are comparable to a circus that would cut out the big top and depend on the sideshow freaks for revenue.

It was unfortunate for Mr. Shouse that he was proposed for keynoter by Democratic national committee leaders. To secure cooperative Democratic support he should have been sponsored by Dr. Fess or Lieut. LaGuardia.

Geneva reports say the arms conference may last a year. Taking a three weeks' vacation every three weeks may double that.

Hearing now of the ample facilities of the Roosevelt band wagon, Uncle John says a number of Democrats are like the feller who didn't go to the picnic, and then said: "If I'd a-knowed I could-a rode I would-a went."

Admitting some prejudice in her favor, we still are constrained to admonish China that the establishment of a stable government requires horse sense.

When the Japanese are well established as the power behind the overthrown in Manchuria it will not be difficult to make peace at Shanghai.

Chairman Raskob will probably be plenty sore at Mr. Kenny, the Yonkers plumber, for barging in on his exclusive role as campaign fund angel.

One Bill Murray, who ten days ago was going to have himself elected, is already content to predict that he will name the next President.

A Chicago survey attributes 44 per cent of failure to vote to inertia. It's a nice name for laziness, isn't it?

Edna Ferber says Americans are afraid to be themselves for fear of being considered goofy; but goofs are better than rubber stamps.

Senator La Follette thinks his five-billion bond plan, "dramatically introduced, would break the backbone of the depression." If it reaches the House, what a chance will be offered to Doc Sirovich, chairman of the patents committee.

If Congress decides that two quarts of 4 per cent beer are nonintoxicating, by the same reasoning and mathematics we must be allowed to enjoy one pint of 16 per cent wine.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A PICTURE.

He called himself a man, and yet
Small irritations made him fret.

And he was often heard to chide
The children romping at his side.

Honest he was in debts of trade,
He never left a bill unpaid.

But still he seldom made a gift
Which broke the iron rule of thrift.

He never felt the weight of care,
But what he thought it most unfair.

When little blunders caught his eye,
Into a towering rage he'd fly.

He'd do for strangers, as a mask.
Favors his own folks feared to ask.

And fancied gain was quicker made
By keeping clerks of him afraid.

If this be manhood—Son, I pray;
You'll shape your life some other way.

Caged Wolf May Behave Well, But the Virtue Is in the Iron Bars.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE visitor was being shown through heaven, and the guide was holding forth in the manner peculiar to guides. "On your left," said he, "is the finest residence section we have. Here you will find our best people—those made good by example. They began early and learned to love goodness for its own sake. There isn't a cull in the lot.

"Next you see the home of the seconds—those made good by environment. They became good because it was the expedient thing to do. First-class people, of course, but their virtue was a product of the other fellow's conscience.

"Now we come to the third-raters. These were whipped by hard circumstance and their spirits were broken. Suffering made them humble and in their humility they turned to virtue to find balm for their hurts. Good-hearted folk, but a little soft in the backbone.

"This barren region is reserved for those of the elect who were made virtuous by old age. In their youth they raised the devil and laughed scornfully when virtue was mentioned, but when they had grown tired of sinning and had lost their hair, teeth and pep, they became solemnly pious and devoted their lives to scolding the young. Rather an ungracious lot of poor sports, but saved by the skin of their teeth."

"It is all so interesting," gushed the visitor. "And now that you have shown me those saved by example, by environment, by affliction and by old age, will you please show me that vast and beautiful portion of paradise inhabited by those who were saved by man-made statutes?"

The guide shook a gloomy head.

"Whatever the cause of virtue," he said, "it is a germ of life in the heart, not a chain affixed to one's legs. We set aside a quarter of an acre for those saved by statute, but nobody ever has applied for space."

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Not "Economic Issue" Only.

Topeka Capital.

In the memorial of some 25,950 hotel men in behalf of liberalizing the prohibition law there are a dozen whereases, one of which reads as follows: "The subject of prohibition should be considered primarily from the economic viewpoint rather than from its moral, religious or sociological aspects."

When that is permitted to sink in what are its implications? It is only another way of saying that the hotel business should be run with regard to economic and not moral, religious or sociological considerations? That might readily be granted.

Not to speak of moral and religious, sociological is a large word and embraces a wide territory. It includes anything with a bearing upon the welfare of society. It is the plea of these hotel men that the welfare of society is not a primary consideration in government dealing with the liquor problem, but that this consideration yields place to business. Is the almighty dollar primary, and moral, religious and sociological interest secondary, in dealing with liquor? It always has been on the liquor side. The liquor interests defied all consideration in going after the dollar. It would not be fair to the wets to say that they have no consideration for sociological, moral or other higher concern of the country on the liquor question, but the 25,950 hotel keepers have frankly placed themselves on a plane with the bootlegger and the former saloon.

Another Issue for Democracy.

Kansas City Times.

If the Democratic party does not nominate a real progressive this year, "it will go where the Whig party went, and for similar reasons, and there will be a third ticket in the field," says Prof. John Dewey, president of the League for Independent Political Action. It is needless to say what group would sponsor the third ticket. Needless to say, too, that the Democrats, who seemingly are trying hard to be conservative, are here presented with a nice little dilemma, what with other pressing issues they have before them for resolution. They may simply have to take a chance with Prof. Dewey's ultimatum until another campaign year.

Into the Open.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Comments on the vote for and against the Beck-Linthicum resolution in the House of Representatives reveal almost as many opinions as there are observers, but at least there are many who incline to agree that it was an advantage to have the matter settled in the direct form of a vote. Representatives for the first time in twelve years were forced to take the wet and dry hurdles, or else to win unfriendly publicity by refusing the jumps. Whatever the proper interpretation of the results may be, the race has been fairly run, and the records set up for all to read.

Easter in 1921 Fell on Same Date as Easter This Year, and Was a Beautiful Summer Day.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At a time when prophecies will be in order as to the kind of weather we will have Easter, it might be of interest to some of your readers to hark back to an Easter under similar circumstances in the days gone by.

In 1921 Easter Sunday fell on March 27th, the same as it does this year. That day was a most beautiful summer day, with the flowers and trees in bloom, and the orchards around the surrounding country were a mass of beautiful blossoms gorgeous to behold. It was truly at that time a most beautiful Easter Day, such as we do not often see even when it happens on a later date.

With this in mind, many of us will be curious to see what kind of weather we will have on the coming Easter Sunday, March 27, 1932.

No Provision for Pedestrians on Mount Vernon Boulevard—Why Not?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I see by the papers that Superintendent of Public Buildings and Public Parks U. S. Grant 3d is arranging for the adequate policing of the Mount Vernon Riverside Memorial Boulevard. The electric light system is being pushed to completion, so that it will be ready for night motoring within a few weeks. I suppose it will not be long until there are Mount Vernon bridle paths for those who can afford the upkeep of saddle horses. So far, very good. But how about footpaths for us hikers?

Virginia Should Restore Landmarks Set by George Washington—Neglect of Congress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A letter signed by Frank B. Conger in Friday's paper filled me with sincere gratitude. It proves there are yet men in the District of Columbia who have "The Courage of Their Convictions." Virginia could pay no higher tribute to the memory of George Washington this Bicentennial year than to "restore the ancient landmarks" that he set.

I can not understand why Congressmen have passed this over without question for so many years.

MRS. DR. WM. JASPER YOUNG.

Friend of the Late George Eastman Recalls His Fine Personal Traits.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If you write any more editorials about Mr. Eastman, I wish that you would mention one of his very lovely characteristics, his profound love for his mother, the inspiration for many of the helpful things that he did. One of his earliest aims was to buy her horses and carriages, and he was very happy when he had done that. Her pictures fill one side of a room in his house. He named his public music hall Kilborne Hall, after her family.

Mr. Eastman was greatly loved in Rochester, and I have never forgotten an evidence of this given one Christmas eve when I was among the guests at his house.

The teachers and students of his music school determined to give him a surprise that night. It began by singing carols outside in the snow; wonderfully done, of course, by the beautiful trained voices.

Delighted by this attention, Mr. Eastman hurried outside to greet the musicians and to invite them in. That was what they had hoped for and one of the teachers went immediately to the great organ in the house. The singers grouped about him in the balcony and they began a recital of Christmas music of great beauty.

Those who had the privilege of knowing Mr. Eastman, even slightly, forgot his achievements as an inventor and man of affairs, as these were obscured by his strong personality and loyalty to friends.

Personal traits remain in memory long after intellectual strength is forgotten. At any rate, I am glad to have put down on paper, part of the lovable characteristics that he was too modest and shy to realize that he possessed.

Reader Says Flaunting One Law Harms All Laws.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every day I hear the statement made that "prohibition is unenforceable, and for that reason the law should be repealed."

And in every instance, so far as I have been able to determine, the person announcing this conclusion is one who has done everything within his power to make a farce and a failure of the law.

Why is it that these people can not see that they are themselves in a large measure responsible for the state of lawlessness and criminality which they and all others deplore? If they choose a section of our Constitution and laws to flaunt and disregard, and do all in their power to encourage and protect violations and violators thereof, how can they expect that the other sections, upon which they rely for protection of their sacred rights, shall not also be disregarded by the criminal element which they have helped to create? It is still true that: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

This is a democratic country, and those who are not willing to abide by the expressed will of a majority are not the best of citizens. In fact, if we should all adopt and live by that attitude (namely, honoring and observing only those laws that we desire or demand and flagrantly disregarding and giving encouragement to violation of all that meet our disapproval), we should very soon have a state of complete anarchy instead of orderly government.

Detailed plans of the function will be forwarded to all State societies who will be invited to participate in the event, also the residents of the District of Columbia. People from the various States will be introduced to their senators and representatives through the medium of pages appointed for the event. Each State will have a hostess and two pages. The same orchestra that played for the delightful Bicentennial colonial ball will play music in keeping with the military touch of the day.

The various commmittees will be named within the next few days by Mr. Elmer E. Field, president of the society. Lists of honor guests, patrons and patronesses will also be published in the near future.

Tickets at $1 each will go on sale at once. Reservations may be made at the Willard Hotel, Shoreham Hotel or at the offices of the society, 1758 Q street northwest, Potomac 4614.

The committee named to cooperate with the various societies in Washington is composed of Mr. Lawrence Moran, chairman; Miss Thelma Thomas, Mr. James Sullivan, Mr. Raymond Cantwell, Miss Louise Hurley and Mr. James Doak.

The faculty women of George Washington University entertained Friday afternoon of last week at a colonial tea, in tribute to the memory of George Washington. It was given in the grill room of the Hay-Adams House and attracted a large attendance of members of the group and their guests.

The program, which was arranged by Mrs. John Donaldson, chairman, opened with piano solos by Mrs. Russell McNitt, featuring early American music. Mrs. McNitt played with delicacy of touch and feeling "The Toast," 1778, by Francis Hopkinson; "Rondo," 1787, by William Brown; "Minuet," 1792, danced before Gen. Washington, composed by Pierre Landrin Dupont; "Lullaby," 1792, from the opera "The Pirates," written by Stephen Storace, and for an encore rendered a minuet which was a favorite with Martha Washington.

A playlet, "Happiness Day," written by Maj. R. B. Lawrence, was presented by Mrs. Arnold McNitt as Martha Washington; Mrs. John Donaldson, as Nellie Custis Lewis, Martha Washington's granddaughter, and Miss Mildred Burnham, as Sally, an old Negro nurse. It was charmingly given.

Miss Lois Balcom and Mr. Don Boggs, accompanied by Mr. George Cornwell, on the piano, danced a French minuet of the period of the Louises. They were enthusiastically received and responded to an encore. Mr. Lester Shafer, codirector with Miss Marion Chace of the Denishawn School of the Dance, who has recently returned from a country-wide tour with Ted Shawn and company, gave a brief description of the minuet.

A colorful note in the assemblage was the presence of very young Master John Charles Lockman Donaldson, in colonial costume as a "miniature George Washington."

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Thomas Brown, Mrs. Richard N. Owens and Mrs. Daniel Buchanan.

The "Madrigal Singers," under the direction of Mrs. John Milton Sylvester, will give a short madrigal and folk song recital in costume.

A "loan collection" of living portraits, posed under the direction of Mrs. Blanche M. Foote, will be a special feature. The Bicentennial committee is composed of the following members: Miss Alice M. Heaven, chairman; Mrs. George J. Adams, vice chairman; Mrs. Gladys B. Middlemiss, Mrs. Robert J. Bates, Mrs. Ada Mills Payne, Mrs. Ida Garrett Mattingly, Miss Julia D. Connor, Dr. Edith Se Ville Coale, Mrs. C. H. Curl, Mrs. Anna H. Farrar, Mrs. Acheson F. Hassan, Mrs. John Moore and the ladies who are arranging the second program.

DISTRIBUTION'S LITTLE JOKE.

IF Mr. George Roberts, of Walla Walla, Wash., has a wholesome regard for the perils of adverse distribution, he can not greatly be blamed after his remarkable experience, in which he felt the full force of her frowns.

The story, as it came to me, was that Mr. Roberts had been fighting a losing rubber. He and his partner had won the first game, but after that had not been favored in the distribution of the cards, and their opponents had made a small slam as well as collected several penalty swings, due to their efforts to defend the game. It seemed that fate was about to smile when Mr. Roberts, as dealer, picked up the hand pictured below:

Spades	A K Q J 10 8
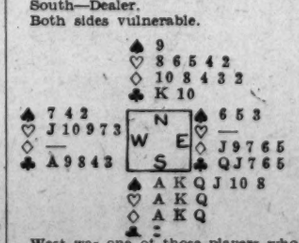
Diamonds	A K Q
Clubs	2

Throwing the approach principle to the winds, Mr. Roberts bid six spades and began mentally the work of seeing how nearly this contract, which appeared a certainty, would balance the scores made by his opponents. A vulnerable small slam was worth 750 points, the rubber bonus was 500 and the value of the spade honors was 150 points, to say nothing of 180 points for the score below the line. This total of 1,580 points was great enough to turn the losing rubber into a winning one.

The complete hands were:
South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



West was one of those players who believe in doubling "on general principles," so he quickly doubled Mr. Roberts' small slam bid. North and East passed and Mr. Roberts, feeling that fate at last was kind, redoubled.

West opened a heart and everything appeared satisfactory until East trumped and returned a diamond. This West trumped, and East and West established a cross-ruff, which gave them 6 tricks, Mr. Roberts meanwhile helplessly playing his beautiful honors to see them fall prey to "worthless" trumps. They then cashed the Ace of clubs and called it a day. The score was thus a penalty of 6 tricks redoubled, totaling 4,400 points, less 150 for the honors held in spades.

I have rarely heard and have never seen in actual play a more vivid illustration of the invisible dangers in distribution. While South should have opened his hand with a forcing bid of two spades, the result, provided a heart is opened and a diamond returned, is inevitable. West's double was, of course, particularly bad, as West could have no way of knowing that his partner was void of hearts as he was void of diamonds, nor was he even sure that the Ace of clubs would take a trick.

TODAY'S POINTER.

No matter how well buttressed with honor tricks a hand may be, the factor of unfavorable distribution may result in a complete wreck. No person will undertake to underwrite the losses due to unfavorable distribution.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

SIR HENRY W. THORNTON, chairman of the Canadian National Railways, and an American, by the way, will be interested in the experiment Columbia is to make broadcasting a program from a Baltimore & Ohio train between Washington and New York next Sunday.

Sir Henry has been working along those lines for some time. In fact, he is probably the world's pioneer in broadcasting from a moving train. Maybe not the first one to try it, but perhaps the most successful.

When we talked with Sir Henry in Montreal last summer he felt that he had the problem of two-way telephone conversation pretty well solved and was only waiting for good times to equip his trains with telephones. One Sunday about a year ago he spoke with Secretary of Commerce Lamont in Washington from a Canadian National train speeding along in Canada at 70 miles an hour. He also had an overseas conversation with London. Likewise he rang up his home in Montreal. Ordinary telephones were used.

HOLLYWOOD McCOSKER tells the story of the first appearance of Charlie Chaplin on the radio. It was in the early days of broadcasting and over WOR, Newark. An automobile met Chaplin at his New York hotel and started toward the ferry. A long line was encountered at Forty-fifth street.

McCosker left the car and went ahead to ask the traffic policeman to rush the car ahead so Chaplin could reach the microphone on time. The policeman was suspicious, as he had heard others voice a similar plea. He walked back to the car with McCorker, looked in the window, recognized Chaplin and said: "I'll do that little thing for you, Charlie."

A crowd of 6,000 lined the street near the studio to catch a glimpse of the comedian. When he completed his microphone debut he announced that he had lost at least 9 pounds. Five years passed before Charlie Chaplin faced the microphone again for a broadcast.

ON March 24, 1775, a group of statesmen-patriots convened in St. John's Church, Richmond, Va., to discuss the critical state of affairs in America. Presided over by the eminent Peyton Randolph, it contained the tongue, the pen and the sword of the American Revolution—Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson and George Washington. In the very same church, descendants of that convention, will reproduce the proceedings of the convention in a broadcast through WRC at 1:30 p. m. on Wednesday.

Patrick Henry, in radio reincarnation, will stand in the very same pew and deliver the fiery address which ended in the phrase—"Give me liberty or give me death."

The Norris resolutions, which will eliminate lame duck sessions of Congress and March presidential inaugurations, will be discussed by Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, at 10 p. m. tonight through WRC.

SONGS, music and comedy will be featured at Walter Reed Hospital tomorrow night when Peggy Clarke, program director of Station WJSV, will present several of the entertainers who have been broadcasting the service hospital all-request programs each Wednesday afternoon. The performance, which will last for one hour and a half, will start at 7:30 p. m.

The one-hundredth anniversary of the death of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, German author, will be observed during a broadcast from the Archer Gibson studios over the WJZ network at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow night. The program will be a symposium of his works, featuring bits of his poetry, dreams and writings which have been set to music. Elizabeth Lennox, Amy Goldsmith, Fred Hufsmith, Theodore Webb, Oswald Mazzuchi and Florence Wightman, all well-known soloists and musicians, will participate.

THOSE jolly old "King's 'Orses," which Ben Bernie has neglected for a couple of months, will be trotted out of the stables for another airing when the "Old Maestro" presents tomorrow's weekly edition (WMAL, 9 p. m.).

How about the Ben Bernie Club we were going to organize?

The program of Radio Joe and the Budget Boys scheduled for WMAL at 7:30 tonight will be known as "Old Age Pension Nite" and, according to Radio Joe, "will be a half hour dedicated to the advancement of the bill which is now before Congress endeavoring to put over that worthy accomplishment. We expect to have Congresswoman Norton, the Lady Mayor of Washington, present to speak on this subject."

George Burns and Grace Allen, comedy team, will continue to be heard with Guy Lombardo's Orchestra (WMAL, 10 o'clock, tonight).

A POETIC tribute to Spring will be read by Margaret Fishback, poet and wit, on the A. & P. Gypsies Spring program tonight (WRC, at 9). Miss Fishback, a Washingtonian, recently had a number of her verses published in a book entitled, "I Feel Better Now." Frank Parker, tenor, will sing "Trees" and a medley, "Spring Fantasy," during the half-hour.

Jane Regny INTERPRETS the MODE

Jane Regny's surprising gown of white silk crepe with its backless decolletage and front cut-outs which reduce the front bodice to sun beach suit proportions. And an evening purse and matching handkerchief, both of chiffon and fine Chantilly lace.

NEW YORK, March 20.—How I love the mode of today! When you stop to think of it, which, frankly, one seldom has time to do—don't you love the grace, the elegance and the simplicity of today's styles? Not to mention their flattery to lovely ladies of all ages nor their perfect adaptability to the times—if you see what I mean.

It just seems as though a modern lovely lady can be as elegant and as well dressed as is at all possible if she owns but one or two good gowns, some discreetly expensive buttons, some more than expensive collars and cuffs, a fur scarf or two, one hat and two pairs of shoes and gloves. Oh, I know the fashionists would have you believe that one needs a frock for every hour in the day and every occasion! But I'm tellin' you what you have to have.

No one knows better than I—gazing sadly at my 30-odd trunks of Paris finery, still packed, my deah—now that I have cut down my activities from those of ten to only three or four women. Once I needed 'em; now I don't—and constantly find myself wearing a favorite dress or coat all of the time, and wondering why I have any others.

That's something for you to think about, Mme. Lady. The simple demands of the mode, and how well dressed you can really be on so little. But not so little taste or intelligence! On so little money, if you plan things rightly.

* * * *

Of course, I knew you simply had to see that so-much-talked-about Jane Regny evening gown, with its "cut-out" front bodice, so there it exactly is! There simply isn't any back at all, my deahs, and the front bodice has been reduced to brassiere-like proportions. Paris still exclaims, and necks are still twisting out of joint to see a frock like this anywhere but at the salon of its designer. So far, no luck—but when a designer is clever enough to start something that every one talks about watch!

* * * *

How would you like to have a costume slip for every single frock you own? And cut in the new bias way, too. Well, you can, easily. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Post for this week's leaflet, and then find out that this design can be made of one yard of material! And remembering remnant sales, and even the price of yard goods not in remnants, you can easily see how you could really have a costume slip for each frock, made by your own clever fingers from our leaflet. Hurry!

* * * *

Schiaparelli has offered something new in skirts—a wrap-around that buttons down the back. I have always loved wrap-around skirts, for their slim look and their comfort. And to button them down the back is certainly an idea!

* * * *

She carries it in her slender fingers—and you simply don't know whether it's her 'kerchief or her bag. It's both, my deah! For the bag is ruffled lace and the handkerchief is, well, more lace than chiffon hankie, if you ask me!

Au Revoir!

Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Famous Beauty Expert.

HIGHLIGHTING THE BLONDE.

IN highlighting the blonde, let us consider her chief beauty problems. Then we will discuss the important make-up tricks, color choices and general care that help to make her more beautiful.

Dry Skin.

No doubt you have noticed that the majority of blondes are of the dry-skin variety. Delicate, fragile complexions that remind one of tea roses or Dresden dolls. There is nothing lovelier than that combination of spun-gold hair and thin, delicate skin. The pity of it is the thin, fair skin usually ages sooner than any other type, because lacking sufficient natural oil it must be nourished by creams and oils to remain supple and wrinkle-free. The dry type of skin and treatment for it has been discussed many times in this column. It must be cleansed gently and carefully and an oil or cream is recommended. It should also be treated to a skin food at night before retiring. And a protective cream should be used before venturing outdoors.

Difficulty in Keeping Light Hair Light.

If you are or ever were a true blonde, you must remember the many compliments you received as a child. Every one admires true golden hair. And every woman who has light hair is constantly waging war with nature, trying desperately to keep the hair from turning dark as she grows older. There are many preparations on the market for keeping light hair light. There are ready-made rinses or rinses that can be made at home from camomile tea leaves, lemon juice, &c. These are added to the last rinsing water and poured over the hair, evenly, to help retain the golden highlights.

Egg Shampoo.

The white of egg shampoo is very popular with blondes desirous of keeping their hair from shewing drab brown streaks. You may use the egg whites immediately before the shampoo or in conjunction with it. If you use it preceding the shampoo, beat two whites of egg with two tablespoonsful of rose water. Massage thoroughly through the hair and scalp. Then follow with regular shampoo.

Combining the egg whites with very pure lemon soap in jellied form makes a highly satisfactory blonde hair shampoo. Be sure to ask for a very pure lemon soap. Cut up a medium sized bar, add to a pint of water and allow to simmer over a slow fire until dissolved. Pour into a clean glass container, close air tight and allow to cool and jell. About one-third of the amount you should have from one pint will be sufficient for one shampoo. To this amount add the white of one egg, beaten thoroughly. Fold into the jelly with fork or fingers. Spray and wet hair thoroughly and then use the soap and egg jelly. The egg should be folded in fresh before each shampoo and the remaining jelly kept in air-tight glass container.

If the hair is inclined to be oily and frequent shampoos are necessary, add a wee pinch of borax to the last rinsing water or a pinch of baking soda. These should be used occasionally, however, once every two or four weeks.

Should you wish full information on rinses you can use after the shampoo to keep your hair light, my bulletin on hair rinses is yours for a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES McDONALD

HE MUST BE VERY YOUNG!

DEAR Frances McDonald:

This Anita woman wrote you about the lover who wears red flannels and plans to have her live in a two-family house. She says this in one breath and tells how he comes and how he loves her and in the next tells us he "has never proposed to her." How does she know that he ever gives her a serious thought, if he has never proposed and how does she now she is the girl he has in mind when he speaks of the two-family house he is to occupy with his wife? What makes these dames so sure of their fatal charms? He may come to her house because it is warmer than his boarding house—despite his red flannels. I do not see what she has to go upon if he has never asked her to marry him.

RED FLANNELS.

Few are the women, my son, who have ever been taken unaware in the matter of a proposal! That is one thing that a woman can see a long way off. She can hasten, or retard it almost without the knowledge of the youth on the sofa. And she needs no assistance in knowing when the victim is safely hers. When she needs help is when he is just looking over the bait and doing circles all around the hook. About then she writes to the paper. But the man who sits round-eyed seven nights a week in the parlor, talking about the swell two-family house he is going to have one of these days, is no mystery to anyone over five years of age. He is in love. Definitely and rather permanently, if rather tamely. The girl may be planning an elopment with the gas man, or even dressing to keep a date down the street, but the lad on the sofa is to all intents and purposes already married and settled for life. Until jerked out of his coma. You see proposals have very little to do with it all. They are almost as passe as the do-do bird. Men propose with no intentions whatever of every marrying anyone so long as they live. And men marry who had no more idea of ever proposing than a six-month-old babe. And so it goes. So no matter whether this gentleman has asked Anita or not, Anita knows what is going on in his one-track mind, and she wants nothing to do with it! And that seems to be that.

As to the sureness of the girl concerning her charms. Why not? Most girls are exceedingly fair to look upon, and surely must know it. Besides, men are forever discovering charms the girl herself can not even find—the dimple in her cheek that he sees, but she can not, the quick smile that perhaps is only for him and that refuses to perform for the mirror. Men are so athirst for beauty that they see its very faintest shadow, and grasp it with eager hands. If girls are oversure of their charms it is because men talk of nothing else—which is exactly as it should be, exactly as it has been since time began, and exactly as it will be till time is at an end. And after that who cares what happens?

Advice on Gardening

PLANTING SHRUBS.

SOME one in a recent article on landscape design said that naturally when a person had one bush he always wanted two. I feel that the writer was quite mistaken, for I know that when the average person owns one bush he always wants at least five more. In this article I wish to speak of six varieties of hardy shrubs that should be in every garden that can afford them the necessary room.

Shrubs, you know, must have room for their roots; they are heavy feeders in most cases, and, therefore, require plenty of soil from which to derive proper nourishment. Aside from sustenance they demand room for a display of top growth. Crowded specimens are neither shapely or sightly.

When setting out shrubs in the early spring, it is well, immediately after they have become established, to spray them with Bordeaux mixture. You remmebr the old adage regarding the ounce of prevention which is worth a pound of cure. This spraying, which does not represent much work or a great expenditure of money, may mean a perfect development of both flowers and foliage.

When planting shrubs be sure to dig the holes of sufficient size to give the roots plenty of room to spread naturally as you place the bush in position. Many people who are not experienced planters do not understand this phase of the work and later ask me why, when they purchased shrubbery from reputable dealers, the bushes died.

Another phase of the work which is either not understood or is entirely overlooked is the after care of newly planted specimens. The first ten days or two weeks after planting you should give each bush three bucketfuls of water. Later, when the prolonged dry spells of July and August come, it is well to mulch newly planted bushes.

Perhaps the bush we love most of all is the lilac, so in even a small garden I should suggest one lilac. Then I think that every garden should have a Philadelphus or old-fashioned mock orange bush. Among the more spectacular shrubs we have the flowering almond. This shrub, when in bloom, is a delight. I frequently refer in this column to the flowering crabapple and am surprised that more readers are not familiar with this unusually lovely shrub. It is decorative at all seasons. Then the forsythia—how we should miss it—to adorn our gardens before the last snow pile has disappeared. This is such a jubilant, golden bush. And the old-fashioned pyrus japonica should never be forgotten. All the varieties I have mentioned require a good soil, sunlight and perfect drainage.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed stamped envelope is supplied.

The Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

THIS is the Monday which brings to us the closing week of Lent and plans for Easter Sunday. But this early in the week we need hardly start our details, especially since we have several "holdover" requests to which we wish to give immediate attention. But watch the column later on for Easter plans.

To you, Mrs. Helder, we say that your fudge icing doubtless "sugars" because you, according to your own description, "stir it constantly while cooking." This is not advisable—in fact, we cook fudge icing or fudge for candy very slowly, which obviates stirring, since slow cooking will not make the fudge stick to the bottom of the pan. Then, when it forms its very first and very soft ball in ice water, we remove from fire, add butter, but do not stir it in, let it cool and then beat to desired consistency. Your proportions of two cupfuls sugar, one cupful milk, two squares of chocolate, a pinch of salt and a tablespoonful of butter are the correct ones. A teaspoonful or less of vanille may be added when you beat the mixture, if you so desire, but some consider it unnecessary for icing purposes. We hope this explanation clears up the difficulty to the extent of future complete success.

Now our day's plans for tomorrow's repast:

TUESDAY'S DINNER.

Lamb Delicious
Potato Croquettes withSpinach Hearts
Rye Bread
Stewed Rhubarb, Molasses Cookies
Coffee

Plain Soup.

1-3 cupful rice
Boiling water
2 cupfuls milk
1 carrot—medium-sized
4 turnips—medium-sized
2 large potatoes
1 large onion
3 sprigs watercress
3 teaspoonfuls butter
1 teaspoonful salt

Add the washed rice to rapidly boiling salted water. Cut the cleaned and pared vegetables in small pieces and add to the rice. Boil together for ten minutes, adding more water if necessary, cover the pan and simmer mixture until well cooked and the water is reduced. Add the milk and butter and serve very hot.

Lamb Delicious.

Place two tablespoons of butter (or substitute, as bacon fat or drippings) in a saucepan and add two slices of onion and one-half cup or more of chopped mushrooms. Cook until brown. Moisten about one and one-half cups of breadcrumbs with one-half cup of heated milk and add one-half teaspoon of minced parsely and a dash of red pepper. Mix and add to one and one-half cups of minced cooked lamb. Add the onion and mushroom mixture and salt to taste. Shape into a loaf. Bake in a hot oven for about fifteen minutes. Serve with tomato sauce if desired.

Tomato Sauce.

2 tablespoons butte
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups strained tomatoes—cooked

Melt the butter and add the flour and salt. Cook until blended and add gradually the tomatoes. Cook until the mixture thickens. Serve hot over the meat.

Potato Croquettes With Spinach Hearts.

4 or 5 potatoes
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
Few grains of pepper

Dipping.

1 egg
1 tablespoon milk
Salt and pepper to season
Breadcrumbs

Pare potatoes and cook in boiling salted water (one tablespoon of salt to a quart). Boil gently until tender. Drain and let steam over low fire for a minute or two. Mash and beat in lightly the hot milk, egg yolk, butter, onion, salt and pepper. Spread on a shallow pan and allow to chill. Pat a small quantity of potato into a flat cake. Place a teaspoon of spinach in the center. Fold up potato around the spinach and shape into a cone. Beat egg slightly and add milk and seasoning. Roll the croquettes in fine breadcrumbs and then in the egg and again in breadcrumbs. Fry in deep, hot fat (390 degrees). Drain on absorbent paper.

THE WEIGHT GUIDE.

For individual assistance write to Nancy Carey, sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and give age, weight, height and habits of life.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey: I have reduced from 225 to 162 pounds and now I find it very difficult to reduce any further. Naturally, I would like to reach my normal weight. I am 24 years of age and 4 feet 11 inches tall. I find I have acquired a very strong desire for sweets. How can I break this? I also have fallen into the habit of midnight snacks. S. E.

You are probably tired, S. E., and very much in need of a little rest—a rest from dieting and counting calories and too concentrated thinking about that diet of yours. You have really done wonders, and for that reason should feel in no way discouraged. What we have done once, you know, we can in most cases readily repeat. But it is not good to get into a rut in this any more than in any other undertaking, and that is why I think a little vacation of perhaps three or four weeks would be the best thing in the world for you. During that time, of course, do not throw all precaution and good judgment to the winds.

For your age and height you should weigh about 115 pounds, but since allowances must be made for build, heredity, &c., it may be that your normal weight is greater than the average.

Your great desire and craving for sweets, as well as midnight lunches, is, no doubt, the cause of all your trouble right now. A little something sweet once in a while will not be taboo, especially while you are on your "vacation," nor will a little in-between snack be disastrous, just so long as you do not overindulge. But then when you begin again with renewed vigor to watch your diet, remember that these things will be quite out of order. They make it too difficult to count calories accurately.

Let me know how you get along, and do not, above all, lose your determination and will to reach your goal.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

OCCUPATIONAL DERMATITIS.

OLD, time-honored, almost classical eczema seems to be doomed. Once reputed to be one of the most prevalent diseases, it is now not much more than a name. The long list of ointments bearing names in which the word eczema enters are due for second christening. People are having the usual quota of skin troubles, but their ailments no longer go by the name eczema.

No other tissue compares with the skin in the amount of insult to which it is exposed. It must work in contact with dry air, while every body cell works best when it is in contact with moisture. It is robbed of its grease as well as its moisture. It is exposed to great variations of temperature—at times to temperature of more than 100; at other times, to less than zero. The shift from hot to cold may be very sudden. Its position subjects it to physical injury. It is on the firing line when infection is most in evidence.

And finally it is subjected to an unlimited variety of chemical poisons. The conditions of work are constantly increasing the hazards of occupational dermatitis. It has been estimated that one-twentieth of all the skin troubles are the direct result of occupation.

The improvement in the working conditions is more than offset by the development of new industries that threatent with dermatitis. At one time it was estimated that one-third of the employes who worked with linseed oil and meal, who fabricated insect powders and who engaged in the aniline oil trades had some form of skin trouble. Now the factories making these products have facilities for, and otherwise protect, their employes and, in consequence, their workers do not have much skin trouble. But as an offset there are numerous new trades in which the fact that there is a skin hazard is not understood by either the employer or employe.

Dr. J. E. Kiley has some simple advice as to means of prevention that can be made use of by persons who work with chemicals. The first is to be provided with a cream ointment or salve, and to apply this to exposed skin before starting work and after the day's job is over.

The second is to do all that is practicable to keep chemicals from covering the skin. In some trades it is feasible to wear gloves, either rubber gloves or other material. In some instances tools rather than the bare hands are used in the material. There is more than one process in the course of manufacture where the operator can make use of some knack to spare his hands. A third procedure is for each floor boss to inspect the skin, especially of the face and hands, of all employes for early evidence of skin trouble; to see that the overalls, the hands, the arms, the finger nails and the hair are kept as clean as possible, and to see that cuts, burns, bruises, scratches and beginning eruptions are not neglected.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE BABE AND THE MISSUS DISCUSS IT.

MRS. RUTH—Well, how did you make out with the colonel?

Babe—All I let him cut me was $5,000; I wouldn't stand for another dime.

Mrs. Ruth—I knew he'd get the best of you.

Babe—Whaddaya mean? He wanted to cut me ten thousand. I made him compromise.

Mrs. Ruth—He's too smart for you. He probably never had any idea of cutting you more than five in the first place.

Babe—Now, look here, I'm pulling down $75,000 as against $80,000, ain't I?

Mrs. Ruth—We'll have to struggle along somehow, I suppose.

Babe—What's five thousand dollars a year to worry about, honey?

Mrs. Ruth—It's $100 a week, that's what.

Babe—Gee, is it that much, no fooling?

Mrs. Ruth—Surely it is. Can't you divide $5,000 by 52?

Babe—So early in the season? Why, I ain't even in shape yet!

• • • •

Mrs. Ruth—Anyhow, it means you get $100 a week less than last year. Think what you could buy with that!

Babe—Lissen, it won't hurt us to retrench a little; everybody else is. I eat too much, anyhow. We can cut down on the groceries. And I can have those suits fixed up instead of buying new clothes.

Mrs. Ruth—You'll have to keep away from those poker games.

Babe—Poker don't cost me nuthin'; I'm lucky.

Mrs. Ruth—From now on you'll have to be.

• • • •

BABE—How about us both doing a little scrimping, dear? We can give up the small car.

Mrs. Ruth—Which car is that?

Babe—The twelve-cylinder imported buggy.

Mrs. Ruth—And we can stop using high-test gas.

Babe—We can cut a little extravagance here and a little there. Say, you know those old silk shirts I was going to give to a cousin of yours?

Mrs. Ruth—Uhuh.

Babe—I think I'd better keep 'em.

Mrs. Ruth—You had some shoes you were going to give to some needy case, too, didn't you?

Babe—Yeah, I did.

Mrs. Ruth—Well, why don't you send them to Col. Ruppert?

Babe—The Colonel has a pair!

When two people get into the same berth it is now justifiable retrenchment. When three or more get in it becomes a combination in restraint of comfort.

The decision comes as a great relief to traveling salesmen. During the slump they have been sleeping two to a berth, eating three to a plate and shaving four to a blade.

MME. EVANTI WINS ACCLAIM OF CAPITAL

Soprano Scores Triumph on Return to Home City After Successes Abroad.

Mme. Lillian Evanti, lyric coloratura soprano, with Erich Riede, pianist of the Metropolitan Opera, accompanist, scored a home-coming triumph yesterday at the Belasco before a large and sympathetic audience of music lovers, when she presented a program of Italian, German, French and Spanish numbers, together with four English songs and a spiritual, a prayer, to an arrangement by Burleigh.

Her flawless rendition of "Care Selve" (Handel) and "Qual Farfalletta Amante" (Scarlatti) was followed by "Qui la Voce" (Bellini), from "Puritani," which proved a successful example of the florid style, the true "bel canto." A sympathetic naturalness in the "Murmelndes Luftchen" (Jensen), exemplified in the German numbers a striking legato register, which prepared her audience for her superb diction and dramatic exposition of the difficult "Als Mir Dein Lied Erklang" (Strauss).

The Berceuse (Rimsky-Korsakoff), from the opera "Sadko," and "Salut a Toi," from "Coq d'Or," exemplified the true Evanti vogue which has been displayed so successfully on the continent in France, Spain, Italy and England during the six years since the artiste left Washington for her audition in Paris. Most striking, of course, since the last appearance here, was the dramaturgic excellence and poise of the stage presence of the former Washington schoolmarm.

Her spiritual number, "Lord I Want to Be" (Burleigh), proved Negroid in no particular, but a prayer of matchless daintiness highly artistic. Among the numerous encores, the "Fan Song" and a lullaby by Reide, her accompanist, scored heavily.

Following her recent presentation with the Detroit Symphony, Mme. Evanti will be presented to New York audiences early this spring. She was accorded a reception by her admirers last night in the parlors of the Phyllis Wheatly Young Women's Christian Association.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 228

THE Congressional Library is pictured above when it was located in the Capitol Building, where it was established in 1800, by an act of Congress appropriating $5,000 for the purchase of books and for the fitting up of a suitable apartment to house them. In 1802 a joint committee of both Houses of Congress was created to superintend the library, and this committee directed the library until 1897 when superintendance was vested in the librarian.

In 1814 the library which contained 3,000 volumes was destroyed in the Capitol fire, but very shortly thereafter Thomas Jefferson's library, consisting of about 7,000 volumes catalogued by himself was purchased as a nucleus of a new collection, and the system employed by him in classification was employed until 1864. In 1851 a second fire reduced the number of books which at that time was about 55,000 to 20,000.

As early as 1873 Congress began to consider the matter of new quarters, and in 1886, the construction of the new building was authorized on the site immediately east of the Capitol. This building was completed in 1897, and in the following summer the books were moved into the new housing with the exception of a portion of the law library, which still remains in the Capitol.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

HAVING bent an eager eye to all the critical comment coming out of Gotham since its opening, and having discussed the matter at some length with divers and sundry who attended both the Washington and New York premieres of the piece, I am convinced that the Capital enjoyed the best version of the good Dr. Ziegfeld's production of "Hot-Cha!" of any that have been disclosed to large assemblages of cash customers.

Some of the New York commentators, as a matter of fact, have even gone so far as to state that since its formal Manhattan opening, "Hot-Cha!" has been restored to much of its original Washington form and is a proportionately better entertainment than the first-night critics saw on Broadway.

This is frequently the case with both dramatic and muscal works that the authors attempt to improve upon regardless of whether or not they were pretty good in the first place.

The same thing, you will recall, happened to "Peter Flies High," the genial little comedy with which the current season at the National was opened last September. "Peter Flies High" was seen here at its best, progressively declined in merit on the road and opened at its worst in New York.

This is largely what happened to "Hot-Cha!" although you would think that such sagacious sharpshooters at the Main Stem's easier risibilities as Lew Brown, Ray Henderson and Mark Hellinger would have known better!

Thomas Mitchell, a reliable and spontaneous actor, is also, it seems, a playwright of parts. While sharing honors with Frank Craven in "Riddle Me This," one of Broadway's current distractions, he is collaborating with Sheridan Gibney on a new comedy bearing the title of "Calico Wedding."

He has also just completed a drama called "Away," on which, he says, he "worked with Maude Adams." It is reported as a possibility that Miss Adams will appear in it next season.

A bulletin from Harry W. Crull, managing director of the Fox Theater, bears the tidings that Mr. George W. Offutt, president of the Washington Board of Trade, will announce the winner of the Fox Theater Easter vacation trip to Miami Beach, Fla., from the stage tonight at 9 o'clock.

The winner of this latest of the Fox's coopgrative competitive awards will have all expenses paid, and while at the Southern resort will be a guest at the smart Roney Plaza Hotel.

Speaking of the Fox, Ruth Roland, former screen star, now appearing as mistress of ceremonies and star of Fanchon & Marco's "Cozy Corner" Idea, together with Ed East and Ralph Dumke, "Sisters of the Skillet," on the same bill, will take time out between their regular performances this afternoon to visit the Naval Hospital and put on a special entertainment for the shut-ins.

The picture theaters will shoot both barrels at susceptible local pocketbooks again, beginning April 1.

Opening on that date at Loew's Palace will be the combination that is confidently expected by the management to top the present house record—Jean Harlow, the original platinum blonde, making her first personal appearance in the National Capital, and Wesley Eddy, returning as master of ceremonies with the "Novel Notions" revue to the stage where he ran up a record of 72 weeks of continuous service, only approached by Maxine Doyle, the charmingly ingenuous young woman now in her second year at the Earle.

Beginning next day, at RKO-Keith's, will be another alliance that should mean something important at the box office—Mary Brian, also making her first professional appearance locally, and Ken Murray, one of the town's favorite jesters, headlining the same regular vaudeville bill.

You may make all the mind bets you wish as to who will be the winner, but, if you ask me, it will be the public!

What is this thing coming up on the screen now . . . I ask you . . . Looks like a drunkard's dream visualized with a slight flair for pigmented pandemonium by a straitjacketed lunatic in a padded cell . . . No, that can't be right; there's a suggestion of form to it—like a close-up of a mass of wriggling angle worms . . . No, there it changes again . . . Except that I feel no pain, I'd think some one had driven a Sixteenth street bus up my back, or maybe tapped me on the head with a pile driver; there're that many lights flashing . . . Can't be the Fourth of July in the middle of March, and, anyway, this is not the White Lot . . . Or is it . . . Ah, now it's getting pretty, just like a million chameleons trying to make good on an acre of Skinner plaids . . . Soothing no end, like a boiler explosion or the bombardment of Chapel . . . Now it's gone black, thank goodness . . . And now it's gone blazing white just as suddenly, just to make it soft for the eye doctors . . . Who invented this thing, anyhow—Sam Lloyd, the puzzle man? . . . And for what? . . . Say, usher, what's going on here? What? Oh, a screen trailer. Pardon me, my vision was 20-20 when I came in here, but that's the only part I've been able to make out:

ALL NEXT WEEK. BEGINNING SATURDAY!

Well, almost that bad, anyway.

Hoping you are the same, love and kisses.

CHICAGO'S NUDE SUN BATHERS AROUSE IRE

Residents of Beach Section File Vigorous Protest Against New Cult.

Chicago, March 20 (U.P.).—Residents of fashionable Rogers Park battled today against threatened invasion of their beaches by nude sun bathers.

They are broad-minded enough to smile upon bathing suits consisting of nothing much but straps, the Rogers Parkians admitted in a hastily-called mass meeting, but they are not broad-minded enough to welcome naked sun worshippers, even though the latter promise to inclose themselves in a knot-holeless stockade.

"The sun is just as warm over on the Chicago drainage canal," exclaimed Hallow Hellstrom, antisun bather leader, in rallying a delegation of irate citizens to descend upon the City Hall, where an ordinance for a European style nude cult playground on the Touney avenue beach apparently has an excellent chance of becoming law.

Would Erect Stockades.

Dr. A. L. Suominen, with 20,000 followers, proposed the ordinance. He would erect two stockades, one for men and one for women, wherein they could absorb all the sunlight they wanted for 15 cents an absorption.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak complicated the situation by telling the protesters that he personally was a sun bather of sorts; that if more Chicagoans soaked up more sunlight than they do now, they'd be happier, healthier citizens.

Dr. Suominen confounded the antinudism forces further by announcing that he wanted the sun bathing plaza in Rogers Park, because that's where most of the would-be sun drinkers lived.

Declares Section "Decent."

"I don't believe it," said Hellstrom. "We're decent citizens. That's why we're against this invasion of nakedness.

"This doctor says the stockade would be 8 feet high. Doesn't he realize there are towering apartment houses on all sides? Has he forgotten about airplanes? Does he want to make us Peeping Toms, in spite of ourselves?"

Arlington County Moves To End Dump Permits

Determined to improve the approaches to the National Capital, together with conditions along many of the highways in the county, the Arlington County board has ordered the revocation of permits for the maintenance of dumps. In taking this action the board has made but one exception and that was the central dump on grounds of the Washington Airport.

County Manager Roy S. Braden says that the county board plans to hold an early conference with officials at the Airport. Action follows hundreds of complaints which have come to the county officials together with the many calls for the county fire departments as a result of fires to adjacent buildings, aside from the foul odors resulting.

Republican Meeting Set Tonight at Lyon Park

Keen interest is being manifest in the Republican mass meeting to be held under auspices of the Arlington County Republican committee tonight in the Lyon Park Community House at 8 o'clock. County Chairman J. E. Spaulding anticipates one of the largest attended Republican meetings ever held in the county.

In addition to the selecting of delegates to attend both the State convention in Purcellville and the national convention in Chicago, it is understood that prominent persons will speak.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

By NELSON B. BELL

"GEORGE WHITE'S SCANDALS." Eleventh edition, featuring Rudy Vallee, Willie and Eugene Howard, Everett Marshall, Ray Bolger, Ethel Barrymore Colt, Gale Quadruplets, Joan Abbott, Loomis Sisters, Barbara Blair, Fred Manatt, Rose MacLean and Joseph Vitale. Sketches by George White, Lew Brown and Irving Caesar; songs by Lew Brown and Ray Henderson; settings by Joseph Urban; costumes designed by Charles Le Maire. Orchestra under the direction of Harry Nieman. At the Washington Auditorium.

In the largest available assembly hall in Washington, the most numerous first night audience of the year last evening paid the tribute of the season's greatest volume of applause to Mr. White's feverish festival of fortissimos.

There is nothing intimate or subdued about this latest edition of the "Scandals." It is a huge, hurried and harmonious succession of cleverly tricked up song numbers, for the most part, varied, intermittently, by comedy skits and blackouts and punctuated now and again by dances that go in for eccentricity more than grace. The skits are no more seriously smudged with off-color suggestiveness than those the Capital already has applauded in other revues this season, whereas the songs—especially those assigned to Everett Marshall, former Metropolitan Opera barytone—are well above the average of entertainments of this type, thus leaving a balance in the "Scandals" favor.

And the group of principals gathered together by Mr. White is something that can't be laughed off casually. It is composed of "names" that hold a wealth of glamour for the ordinary amusement-seeker. Not a featured member of the cast but would be liked, even if he happened not to be particularly good. In this instance, happily, none happens to be bad, although it might be held that some could be given more to do without harm to the evening's goings-on.

There could, for example, be more of Rudy Vallee than there is. With as few appearances as he has, it is a difficult thing to prevent his stopping the show in its tracks every time he steps his foot on the stage. And the Loomis sisters, Maxine and Virginia, who have—or did have a few years ago—a decided Washington following, could be utilized advantageously beyond their single "Beginning of Love" number, elaborately worked up into a quasi-dramatic recital as that simple and humorous song is.

However, perhaps Mr. White knows best. Certainly he has provided greatly liked intervals in the "Interview," in which Ethel Barrymore Colt seeks to worm the truth out of Willie and Eugene Howard, and in her only other skit, "It Happened in Venice," with the same two; in everything that Willie Howard does, with his unerring comedy sense and excellent voice, here dedicated to some novel clowning; in the Gale Quadruplets—June, Joan, Jane and Jean—agilt dancing, one of them bearing a startling resemblance to Joan Crawford, incidentally; in Rudy Vallee's songs, "This Is the Missus" and "My Song," preeminently; in Joan Abbott's lusty vocalism and the second act's "Wonder Bar" finale.

Probably the two most hilariously funny of the blackouts are "Pay the Two Dollars" and "The Good Old Days," in the first of which Willie Howard is assisted by his brother, and in the second by Rudy Vallee.

Everett Marshall's contributions to the two acts are among their most brilliant and most notable features. By the power and artistry of his highly cultivated barytone he raises ballads and song stories to almost operatic levels of impressiveness. His first-act finale, "That's Why Darkies Were Born" and "Song of the Foreign Legion," in the second act, are stirringly done and "The Thrill Is Gone" only falls short of these two by reason of its gentler mood.

In Ray Bolger, "Scandals" has a dancer who approaches nearer to the versatility and skill of Jack Donohue than any one since the passing of that incomparable "hoofer," and in Barbara Blair it has an ingenuous young comedienne blessed with the rare gift of making "bits" take on the importance of major episodes.

While there are some striking stage effects during the course of the two acts, Mr. White has not gone in for ensemble "pictures," save in rare instances. The final tableau of Mr. Marshall's "Song of the Foreign Legion," for one, is executed in the most approved Ben Ali Haggan manner. The production as a whole, however, has not been immune to the perceptible blemishes of a long and prosperous New York run.

An orchestra of sufficient proportions to do justice to the size of the auditorium in which it is heard, renders yeomen's service under the baton of Harry Nieman, adding appreciable color to such hits as "Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries," "Ladies and Gentlemen, That's Love," "Peanuts," "Here It Is," "Back From Hollywood" and numerous others, in addition to those previoously mentioned.

And do not let the size of the Auditorium deter you from enjoying a good journeyman's job of revue-making. If the company continues to work throughout the week with the stentorian enthusiasm displayed last night, there will be no difficulty about hearing!

An Easter egg hunt will be staged on Easter Monday at 3 p. m., at St. Agnes Episcopal School, under the auspices of Section B, of Christ Episcopal Church, with Mrs. L. W. Van Bibber as general chairman. Mrs. David N. Rust, president, and Miss Mary Lloyd, secretary of the section, are assisting the committee. Tickets are in charge of Miss Lloyd, at 209 South St. Asaph street, or at the school the day of the hunt.

Buses will leave Christ Church Parish Hall at 2:30 that afternoon and in case of rain the party will be held in the Virginia Public Service Auditorium.

The March meeting of the Alexandria High School unit of the Parent-Teacher Association will be held at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon in the school auditorium. The program will be in charge of Miss Corinne T. Reardon.

FRIEDRICH'S WILDNESS BRINGS NATS FIRST DEFEAT

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Mobile, Ala., March 20.

THE cards are stacked against him in the regular outfield line-up of the Nats, but Sam Rice is making a valiant effort to pry himself from the bench, where he is fated to rest his venerable form this season.

The presence of Heinie Manush and Sammy West, and the acquisition of Don Carlos Reynolds, who put the meager sock in the White Sox two years ago, has relegated Samuel to a substitute role, a strange character for this veteran of seventeen seasons with the Nats, but whether or not the regular trio can continue to eclipse Rice throughout the season is a matter of much conjecture.

The first sign of a protracted slump by any of the regular trio will mean the insertion of Rice into the outfield line-up, for Samuel is a very acceptable outfielder on any team and only the fact that Manush, West and Reynolds are potentially .350 hitters or better gives them preference at this writing.

In the exhibition games of the Nats thus far, it has been Rice who has provided the sensations among the outfielders with his hitting and fielding feats which belie his 38 years. He has roamed far and wide over the outfield terrain to make his catches and has been a demon at bat as contrasted with the sluggishness of the regulars, who have been slow to get started.

Rice is acclaimed by President Griffith as the greatest stylist at bat in the American League, Babe Ruth notwithstanding. The manner in which the venerable Samuel stands up at the plate, with bat held high and still across his chest until he strokes the ball with a smooth follow-through that slaps it for goodly distances, is the most graceful of all the batting styles and has netted Rice a lifetime average of far better than .300.

Like Joe Judge, Babe Ruth and other veteran left-handed swingers, Rice knows no weakness against left-handed pitching, hitting the southpaws and the right-handers with equal facility and effect, and the presence of southpaw pitching has never necessitated the benching of this veteran as it has so affected so many other left-handed sluggers.

The venerable Samuel long has been President Griffith's ideal ball player with his hitting ability and speed on the bases and in the field. Griffith throughout his 42-year career in baseball has been partial to left-handed hitters despite his frantic search for a right-hander, hard-hitting outfielder, which ended with the acquisition of Reynolds from the White Sox.

Griffith likes the advantages accruing to the left-handed hitters at the plate. He likes the two-step start they have toward first base, which enables them to beat out infield hits that right-handed hitters have difficulty in converting into safeties. He likes the left-handed hitters' habit of pulling their blows to right field that enables the base runners to advance to third without the great risk that hits into left would entail.

Rice fits in, too, with Griffith's almost passionate desire for fleet-footed line-ups that can take those extra bases often so vital to the cause. Samuel annually has been among the leading base stealers in the circuit and has lost little of his native speed, remaining today as the best base runner on the club, far eclipsing his outfield rivals in this respect.

Manager Johnson's preference for Manush, West and Reynolds lies in the fact that they clout the ball for longer distances than Rice, an item which has handicapped the Nats for several years—this lack of long-distance clouters which the Yankees and Athletics have boasted. The Achilles-heel in the defensive armor of Rice is his unreliability on ground balls, his lone weakness which for seventeen seasons was not deemed serious enough to keep him from the right field post with Washington teams. Rice has been notoriously erratic on ground balls to the outfield, but his general all-round value has overshadowed this phase of his play.

At the first sign of a slump by any regular the venerable Samuel will be seen in the Nats' outfield, and you may lay to that. It's straight from Johnson.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 20 (A.P.). William Crawford, of New York and Miami, won the Col. Green trophy, emblematic of outboard motor supremacy, today by winning the third heat of a two-day competition. Charles H. Harrison, of England, was second and G. P. Ellsworth, of Durham, N. C., third.

Crawford won the first heat yesterday and finished eighth in the second. His first place today gave him a total of 969 points. Harrison, leading on points at the start of today's competition, was disqualified with five other drivers when they beat the starter's gun by ten seconds. His point total of 722 gave him second place. Ellsworth's total was 653 points.

Auteuil, France, March 20 (A.P.).—E. Ballero's Agitato won the Prix Adolphe Abeille Steeplechase of 4,200 meters here today with J. Cristobal's Vizille second and Viscount Derivaud's Le Miracle third.

U. S. Netmen Favored In International Play With Stars of France

NEW YORK, March 20 (A.P.).—With the new national indoor singles and doubles champions and the singles runner-up composing the United States Team, America was the favorite today to defeat France in the third international team match between the two countries which starts tomorrow at the Seventh Regiment Armory.

The team match, which has come to be regarded as a sort of winter Davis Cup match, is decided in the same way as the greater international competition. It will open tomorrow with two singles matches which send Gregory Mangin, of Newark, winner of the indoor title yesterday, against Christian Boussus, now considered the best of the three French stars, and Frank Shields, of New York, the runner-up, against the veteran French star, Jean Borotra. The order will be reversed for the concluding singles Wednesday.

The doubles match will be played Tuesday. The new indoor champions, George Lott, jr., and John Van Ryn, have been chosen to represent the United States. France's team has not been named, but unless the singles indicate a one-sided match, Borotra and Boussus probably will play. Antoine Gentien, third of the French Team, probably will see no action unless it is decided to give him a taste of international competition.

Chandler Again Wins From Vines at Tennis

Pasadena, Calif., March 20 (A.P.).—Edward "Bud" Chandler, San Francisco, former intercollegiate tennis titlist, vanquished Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, national singles champion, in three sets today in the feature event of the second annual North-South matches. Play ended today.

The South followed up its 4-2 win of last year by annexing 5 of 7 matches of this year's program.

Registering his second straight victory over Vines within a month, Chandler won by scores of 6—4, 6—8, 6—3.

The noted woman champion, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, competed today in two matches. The first she lost to Alan Herrington, former southern California titlist, 7—5, a one-set exhibition.

Paired with Gerry Stratford, San Francisco, No. 2 in the North, she lost a mixed doubles contest with Miss Carolin Babcock and Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, 6—3, 6—4.

Manich to Meet Szabo In Strand Cofeature

Joe Turner's torso twisters return to the Strand Theater for this week's mat medicine, their usual playground having been turned over to chorus girls and boys for a week of merriment.

This week's bill will be headed by a cofeature, with Sandor Szabo and George Manich providing a half and Fred Grobmeier and Frank Speers furnishing the other half of the act. This will be preceded by a tussle between "Sawbones" Wilson and Nick Nestor. Three additional matches will be arranged for the show.

Szabo threw Manich in the first meeting between the two, but the latter has exhibited marked improvement in his last three matches, and is given an even chance to win Thursday. Grobmeier and his scissors hold should effectively squelch the ambitions of Speers, a former college grid star.

Four Titles to Be Decided This Week in Court Play.

D. and H. Five Faces Mt. Vernon Tonight in Feature.

THE greatest week of the District A. A. U. tournament, sponsored by The Washington Post, stretches invitingly before the basket ball fans of Washington, with four undisputed city champions destined to be crowned, and a great field of 23 teams fated to be reduced to 8 in 19 thrill-packed games.

Beginning tonight at 7 o'clock at Tech High's gigantic gym, with a crowd all too eager to see a night of four important basket ball games for the reasonable fee of 25 cents, the week will swing into action, and before this night is over two teams will stand panting in the final rounds of their respective weight sections, while the remaining two will have advanced to the semifinal round.

Featured tonight is the 10 o'clock game which matches up Delaware and Hudson, which, to all appearances, boosted themselves to the informal unlimited championship of the District not long ago by winning the Community Center League title after the Potomac Boat Club, Saks Clothiers and Griffith Consumers had faded away.

D.-H. Has Slight Edge In Feature Game.

But so tremendous has been the power of underdogs in The Post's tournament that D. and H. enters its game tonight against Mount Vernon with little more than an edge in the pregame dope. Hundreds of court followers saw the mounts in their first tournament test turn back the seeded No. 4 team of the meet, Bliss Electrical School, largely on the merits of three inspired basketmen, Monroe, Melton and the gangling, loose limbed and nonchalant Maurice Goubeau.

Eastern High's Reserves, made up of many of the youths who helped carry the Light Blue and White to the heights of high school competition this year, appear in the 9 o'clock spot against the Powhatans of Friends School in a game which should bring out high school sports fans.

Troublemaker Choice In Carolina Cup Race

Camden, S. C., March 20 (A.P.).—Troublemaker, owned by Mrs. T. H. Somerville, of Montpelier, Va., has been installed as the favorite for the Carolina Cup Race, premier steeplechase event of the season here, to be run next Saturday.

An even dozen entries have been made for the race and while Troublemaker has been most impressive in his workouts, there are plenty of admirers for Mrs. W. Austin Wadsworth's Hot Spur, Ernest L. Woodward's Emerald Isle and Harry D. Kirkover's Sunset.

This will be the third running of the Carolina Cup Race, 3 miles over timber. It was won last year by Sea Soldier, son of Man o' War.

ST. PATRICK'S WINS TITLE.

Chicago, March 20 (A.P.).—St. Patrick's Academy of Chicago defeated St. Mel of Chicago, 22 to 20, in the tourney final tonight for the National Catholic basket ball championship of the United States.

St. Mel led, 14 to 10, at the half time, but was held scoreless in the last quarter.

REAL FIGHTS LISTED AT PORTNER'S

Grudge Battles Feature Star Card Tomorrow.

GRUDGE fights, the things that help to make the wheels—not to mention the turnstiles—go around in this boxing racket, will spice tomorrow night's benefit show to be presented by the Day Nursery athletic committee in Portner Arena.

Bitter feeling engendered in past clashes will flare forth anew in two of the six bouts arranged. One of them brings together Walter Kirkwood., local middleweight, who formerly had headquarters in Norfolk, and Bob Turner, self-styled "Virginia Assassin" from Newport News. The other brackets Gabe Navos, sensational local flyweight, and Pete Powell, of Newport News. Kirkwood and Turner are down for eight rounds; Navos and Powell for six.

Boys Have Real Causes For Hate.

It sounds like the old ballyhoo, but these are real cases of deep, dark hatred with the fans due to witness mayhem committed in all its phases.

Turner, who pounded Henry Irving to sleep two weeks ago, is out to avenge an earlier loss to Kirkwood by decision and, furthermore, to prove that the unofficial verdict he was awarded in another meeting with Walter was justified. Kirkwood, who also conquered Irving, but had more difficulty in doing so, predicts he will again snatch the decision, if not win by a knockout. The latter ending would be much the more gratifying to Walter.

Navos, whose three successive kayoes in jig time, have established him as a prime favorite with Day Nursery patrons this season, seeks to even his score with Powell, who defeated him twice in three previous battles. Navos won the third scrap and is confident of making it 2-to-2, probably by dint of his kayo punch. In all of their earlier meetings Powell and Navos tossed discretion out in the alley to throw fists wildly. So the ensuing brawl bids fair to produce a two-man riot with nothing in the way of punishment barred.

Al Martin, who holds victories over Billy Landers, Frankie McKenna and Jimmy Tramberia in addition to a draw with Dick Welsh, will collide with Nick Antonelli, Mohawk Club featherweight, in one of the eight-rounders. Jimmy "Sailor" McKenna, local lightweight, is matched against Tootale Bashara, ambitious and aggressive Norfolk lad, in another.

K. O. Riley and Sam Finazzo, welterweights, and Kid Roanoke and Len King, featherweights, will scuffle in the two four-round prelims.

Miss Hicks Is Entered In Midsouth Golf

Southern Pines, N. C., March 20 (A.P.).—Helen Hicks, national women's golf champion, heads the list of entrants for the women's mid-South 36-hole medal championship to be played Wednesday and Thursday at the Southern Pines Country Club.

Miss Hicks won the tournament last year. Other prominent golfers who will compete in the tournament include Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, Western champion; Beatrice Gottlieb, of New York; Mrs. Richard Clemson, of Middletown, N. Y., and Miss Helen Waring, of Pinehurst.

Lee, 12-year-old star, defeated Bruce Mapes and George Boltres, both of New York, in that order.

$50,000 Agua Race Won by Phar Lap

'Wonder Horse' Sets Record, Defeating Field Easily.

Reveille Boy, Scimitar and Joe Flores Trail Winner.

By WILLIAM WARNE.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., March 20 (A.P.).—Phar Lap, the giant Australian gelding, ran away from a field of ten of America's best thoroughbreds to win the $50,050 Agua Caliente Handicap and set a new track record of 2:02 4-5 in his first race on an American track here today.

Fifteen thousand fans marveled as Phar Lap crossed the finish two lengths ahead of Reveille Boy and the field.

The Red Terror, given a perfect ride by Billy Elliott, the jockey brought from down under, started slowly but uncorked a burst of speed in the back stretch that carried him past seven horses and out in front.

Reveille Boy in Great Challenge.

Half a mile further along the mile-and-a-quarter course, just as Phar Lap moved into the home stretch, came Reveille Boy, winner of the American Derby in 1929. He came up fast until he was running neck and neck with the invader.

Momentarily the two hung together and then Elliott applied the switch for the first and the only time. Phar Lap ran Reveille Boy into the ground, finishing two lengths ahead of the J. A. Best 5-year-old colt.

Three lengths behind Reveille Boy thundered Scimitar to squeeze the 3-year-old Joe Flores out of third place.

For his sensational race, the first Phar Lap has started since he completed his 10,000-mile trip, January 15, the Australian earned $50,050. This, added to the $282,700 he had won for his owners, David J. Davis and H. R. Telford, of Melbourne, made his total winnings $332,750 and placed him well up among the world's all-time money winners.

Reveille Boy took $5,000 of the added money prize, 3-year-old Scimitar, $2,500, and Joe Flores, owned by S. H. Lee, of Tulsa, Okla., $1,250.

After Reveille Boy held up the field for twelve minutes with his usual bucking tactics at the barrier, they were under way, with Bahamas, winner of the Agua Caliente Derby two weeks ago, in the lead.

The winner passed the grand stand in seventh position, in stout restraint, a common enough practice in Australia, but one which was calculated to cause skipping hearts among the thousands that played

Advice on Grid Coach Unwanted at Oklahoma

Norman, Okla., March 20 (A.P.).—University of Oklahoma students will not be permitted to vote their approval or disapproval of Ben G. Owen as director of athletics, Dr. W. B. Bizzell, university president, has decided.

Dr. Bizzell last night said the vote, announced by the student council for Tuesday following the resignation of Adrian Lindsay as head football coach, was projected without authority.

LOUISVILLE SCORES SIX TIMES IN FIRST TO GAIN 7-6 VERDICT

Filipinos to Boycott Boxing as Protest of Decision for Wolgast

Six Passes and Own Error Cost Rookie Hurler Six Runs.

Griffith and Ragland Not Scored On in Last 5 Rounds.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH, Sports Editor of The Post.

MOBILE, Ala., March 20.—The Washington Ball Club sacrificed a game this afternoon on the altar of experience for a rookie pitcher and accepted defeat for the first time in five exhibition contests this season—a 7-to-6 beating at the hands of the Louisville Colonels, the Nats' victims on two previous occasions.

Young Bob Friedrich, erstwhile star of Holy Cross College, with a brief career at Chattanooga last season, weakened his bid for a berth in the big league with a dismal exhibition in the opening inning which sent the 1,000 Mobilians into high glee as Louisville paraded six runs across the plate on a meager two hits abetted by six bases on balls and an error that Friedrich himself tossed into the inning.

Friedrich's Error Cost Three Runs.

Friedrich might have halted the slaughter with three runs across, but he threw away an easy grounder for the third out, and then walked four men in succession, forcing across three more runs after starting the game by walking the first two men to face him. For plain and fancy wildness on the mound, Friedrich today had no peers, but Manager Johnson suffered his presence that he might gain from the experience.

The Nats strove valiantly to cut down this mountainous lead and all but succeeded, scoring six runs in the last five innings, but a single

Special to The Washington Post.

Biloxi, Miss., March 20.—The Washington Nationals' Yannigans had to come from behind with some heavy hitting to outscore the Biloxi, Miss., Coast League championship club, 13 to 5, here today while the regulars played the Louisville Colonels at Mobile.

Dave Harris clouted two home runs, knocking in five tallies, while Johnny Kerr secured three hits in four attempts. The Biloxians in four innings had secured five hits for four runs off Bob Burke and were leading, 4 to 2, when Luther Thomas started the fifth.

Sectional Ring Meet Draws 3 Titleholders

Atlanta, Ga., March 20 (A.P.).—Three 1931 champions are included among the boxers who will participate in the annual Southeast A. A. U ring championships here March 24, 25 and 26.

They are Philip Carpenter, of Fort Benning, heavyweight; George Clausen, of Mobile, lightweight, and Homer Sears, of Tech High School, Atlanta flyweight.

Sears will fight in the bantamweight class this year, being forced out of the flyweight division because of added weight.

Petrolle-Battalino To Fight Thursday

New York, March 20 (A.P.).—The Lenten season, now drawing to a close, interferes seriously with the national boxing program this week and leaves New York's Madison Square Garden with the one big bout of the week.

Billy Petrolle, the Fargo veteran, who now makes his home in Duluth, will attempt to stop the upward surge of Christopher (Bat) Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., at the Garden Thursday night.

Despite Petrolle's impressive winning record during the last year or more, the Duluth slugger probably will be no better than an even choice against Battalino. The betting ring is getting tired quoting odds against the rugged Hartford boy.

Vics Defeated in Last Quarter by Collegians

Rallying in the final quarter to overcome an 11-point lead, the Williamsburg Collegians triumphed over Vic's Sport Shop, 40 to 35, in an exciting game played at Silver Spring yesterday. It was the final appearance this season for the locals.

"Little Lenny" Lenbeck, a substitute for Sundin, who was injured late in the game, provided the spark that exploded the dynamite and caused the Vics' downfall. Lenbeck counted five times from the field in rapid succession immediately after entering the game. Once in possession of the lead, the Collegians successfully resorted to a "freezing" game. "Doc" Hessler and Walter Morris were the big figure men for the Sport Shop. The preliminary game scheduled between the Maroon Scholastics and Jewish Community Center, was postponed when the custodian of the latter team's wardrobe failed to appear.

Highley-Greiner Victors In Casey Distance Runs

Navy athletes finished one, two, three in the 5½-mile practice run staged under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus yesterday. Ensign F. E. Highley scored his second consecutive victory in this event when he jogged home in the fast time of 30 minutes 17.3 seconds. R. J. Moylan was second and H. L. Nahgonlie third.

Bill Greiner, K. of C., outdistanced his field in the 9½-mile jaunt, negotiating the distance in 52 minutes 40 seconds. Mike Lynch, veteran marathoner, ran a dead heat with B. Nicholson and A. Dewhorst for the runner-up honors. Their time was 56 minutes 30 seconds.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

Tampa, Fla., March 20 (A.P.).—Leading by three runs entering the ninth, the Cincinnati Reds blew up today, and lost to the Philadelphia Athletics, 6 to 5, in a thirteen-inning exhibition contest.

The Philadelphians won nominally on a double by Cramer and Oscar Roettger's third single of the contest. Actually, the game became theirs when Rix weakened in the ninth to allow a pass and three hits, and Grantham completed the collapse by a muff with a double play in his grasp.

Outhit, the Reds gathered their lead by clever work afield.

San Antonio, Tex., March 20 (A. P.).—Led by Mel Simons, who hit safely four times, the White Sox overcame the San Antonio Indians, 8 to 4, in another exhibition game today.

Simons was aided by Bill Cissell's two doubles and a triple by Bruce Campbell. Sad Sam Jones, Tommy Thomas and Bump Hadley did the Hose pitching, and only Thomas was seriously pushed about by the Texas Leaguers.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 20 (A.P.).—After going scoreless eight innings, the Phillies made two runs in the ninth to tie the St. Louis Browns in an exhibition game today, and in the extra inning made two more runs to win, 4 to 2.

Jimmy Levey, young Browns' shortstop, after having handled ten chances without an error, faltered on a double play in the ninth inning and the Phillies overcame the two-run lead of the Browns to send the game into an extra inning. In the tenth, Kline, for the Phillies, walked, took second on a passed ball, Hurst sacrificed, Scarritt tripled to center field, scoring Klein, and Whitney worked the squeeze play to bring in Scarritt.

Sacrifice for Mich. State By Baseballer in Vain

Muskegon, Mich., March 20 (A.P.).—Seven and one-half to fifteen years is not too much to sacrifice when the old alma mater's baseball team faces a losing season.

At least that was the attitude of Cecil Thompson, former star second baseman for old Michigan State Reformatory, when he came into court to be sentenced for larceny.

"Michigan Reformatory's baseball team needs me," he explained to Judge John Vanderwerp.

But Michigan Reformatory's loss is going to be Michigan State Prison's gain, for Thompson, Judge Vanderwerp ruled, has graduated by virtue of three terms, to the prison class.

Don George, Former Mat Champ, In Bolling Field Feature Tonight

BLACK-HAIRED broad-shouldered Ed (Don) George, Adonis of the mat and former heavyweight champion of Paul Bowser's wrestling realm, will resume his comeback titular drive at Bolling Field Armory tonight when the Bolling Field Athletic Association unveils its specialty arranged card of five specialties.

His opponent will be Dr. Fred Meyers, an old-time Washington favorite and one of the ranking members of his clique.

Karl Pojello, crowd-pleasing Lithuanian, steps into action against Ivan Vakturoff, Russian Cossack, in a coneadlining feature go.

A special added attraction carrying a 30-minute time limit pits Sam Cordovano, Georgetown University's former gridiron sensation, against "Bull" Garnon, English ace. Other supplementaries find Charley Strack, former Olympic champion, opposed to Lee Wykoff, once a gridironer with St. Louis University, and youthful Danny Winters opening fire against Mario Giglio, Italian idol.

George's debut locally has attracted unusual interest. Particularly insofar as he recently created something of a sensation by tossing "Dynamite Gus" him to win here. Entering the back stretch, Phar Lap, in full stride, moved up rapidly, taking a clear lead.

At the three-eighths pole Phar Lap had a lead of four lengths and it appeared he might win by the furlong his Australian backers had mentioned in predicting a sensational victory. By the time he rounded into the stretch, however, Reveille Boy was ready to make his gallant challenge.

Reveille Boy swept up on the outside with a sprint that for a time looked like it would leave Phar Lap struggling in the dust, but the Australian had been loafing. Elliott let Phar Lap have his head and he matched his long stride with the shorter, quicker ones of the challenger, and then the jockey lashed him.

It was enough. While Jockey Bob Wholey lashed Reveille Boy savagely, the red terror stepped out under the slight urging and drew away. In the last sixteenth it was obvious that there wasn't a horse in the race that could overcome his lead.

Phar Lap "Cool and Collected" At Finish.

A crashing cheer came from the spectators as Phar Lap loped past the finish line.

The invader was reined in quickly and jogged back to the charmed circle as the roar of those who wondered at his great power increased. The police were unable to hold the crowd as it rushed to the track to get a better look at the winner. But Phar Lap remained as calm as he was during the long wait at the post. He was not lathering as were some of the others, and scarcely was blowing.

Phar Lap went into the race an even money favorite in the books, but apparently the crowd had not placed a corresponding amount of money through the mutuel machines, for on $2 tickets he paid $5 to win, $6.50 to place and $2.80 to show, the best odds for a favorite paid during the fifteen-race program today.

Reveille Boy paid $6.20 to place and $2.80 to show. Scimitar paid $6.

Athletes Face Action In Prince Georges

Upper Marlboro, Md., March 20.—Prince Georges County boy and girl athletes will get down to brisk practice the coming week in preparation for championship competition in various sports scheduled to start in about a month.

Baseball, track and speed ball for boys and volley ball for girls, together with various other athletic events in the annual county track and field meet will again make up the program this season.

Hyattsville High, which gained the Maryland State championship in baseball in 1931, is favored again to win county honors. Brandywine High's volley ball team, county champion last season, lost heavily by graduation, and brisk opposition is looked for by the lower county lassies, especially from Upper Marlboro and Hyattsville.

In track and field, Hyattsville High will have little trouble in defending honors this season.

A. A. U. MANAGERS MEET.

The board of managers of the District A. A. U. will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at Tech High School. All members are requested to attend as important business will be transacted.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

ALMOST as soon as Billie Fries, jr., was able to navigate under his own power, his father, Bill Fries, sr., former resident professional at the Claremont Country Club Oakland, Calif., had him playing golf with a specially designed set of clubs.

In November, 1925, at the age of only 19 months, little Billie strutted boldly up to the first tee and cried out a lusty "fore." Then with perfect form, he let go a hefty swing that sent the ball into a bunker 90 yards away * * * and set an all-time flea-weight driving record!

Bill Fries, sr., has established some notable records, one of which will be difficult to match. At the Claremont Club, he made four twos within seven consecutive holes, for an average of 2.85 strokes a hole.

Camp Greenville, is a boy's camp located at a beautiful site in the mountains about 40 miles from Greenville, S. C. Three years ago, the boys and leaders began to build with their own hands, a much-needed lodge.

Shortly after the construction work had begun, the camp decided to make theirs a unique lodge; a radiating center of international friendliness and good-will. With the cooperation of the local Rotary Club, more than 400 souvenirs and rocks for the building of the lodge were gathered from 50 different countries. Along with the many remarkable rocks, came letters expressive of friendliness and fellowship from Rotary Clubs all over the world. So great was the response that the camp is publishing a book of 13 volumes, containing the many letters and photographs, and a complete history of each contributed stone in the walls.

ST. JOHN'S PARK, Jacksonville, Fla., March 20.—Racing shifts to St. Johns Park, on the Florida circuit tomorrow, following the closing of the season at Tropical Park, Miami. As the Fair Grounds closed Saturday also, the only track running besides St. Johns is Agua Caliente, which closes Saturday. St. Johns Park, near Jacksonville, will run for ten days, filling in until the opening of the Eastern racing season at Bowie, Md., which starts April 1.

Post time at St. Johns on the first race is to be at 2:30. Seven races make up a day's card. Purses range from $500 to $800. The feature tomorrow is the St. Johns Handicap, at 6 furlongs. The fields here indicate that virtually the same horses that raced at Tropical Park, with the exception of some of the larger stables, will be found in action, and the management is almost identical with that at Tropical Park.

JAZ AGE, a fast sprinter through the Florida racing, seems the logical horse to win the feature. ULUNIU, whose last race must be discounted, is a dangerous contender. CHATFORD should hold the others safe, unless JACK COLLINS makes a bid for third money. JAZ AGE won his last race, beating Flying Heels, and ran 5 furlongs in 59 4-5.

FIRST RACE—BOB BLACKBURN is best, but will find CHATTAHOOCHEE a stubborn rival. WAVE TOP should be in the money.

SECOND RACE — MONTANARO, winner of his last race over Bounding Deep at Tropical Park, is the best horse in the second race. DONNY JOHNNY, at the sprint distance, is most dangerous of the field, and should get the place. ELLICE is best of the others.

THIRD RACE—MARABOU will have COOTS to beat in the third race. Recent racing points to him as the winner of this dash. COOTS disappointed in his recent starts, but should find it easy to outfoot the others in this race. NELSON should be in the money on general form last year in the East.

FIFTH RACE—CHICSU is selected. This horse has won his last two starts, beating a stronger field in his last start. GRIFFIN, throwing out his last race, is the logical contender, with the consistent FAIR BILL a close-up third.

SIXTH RACE—PLAY BILL should repeat his last Tropical Park victory by winning the sixth event. He beat Putter and Crushed Stone in the former race. RED FACE, also winner last week, gets second call, and is a greatly improved plater. BIRD OF PREY can improve on his last race and should get third money.

SEVENTH RACE—MOROCCO, which set a track record at the Gables Association meeting, stands out. TANTALIZING has shown enough to be rated the contender. JUDGE CAVERLY, making his first start since the first day of January, should get in the money.

Singman's Goal Wins For Census in Series

A long pot shot in the final ten seconds of play by Lester Singman enabled the Census Enumerators to eke out a 15 to 14 victory over Bureau of Investigation in the first of a three-game series to determine the championship of the Government League. The battle attracted a large crowd to the Bolling Field gym.

Both teams played cautiously in the first half, which ended with Census leading, 3 to 2. Action speeded up a bit in the second half, and the Detectives finally grasped the lead on successive shots by Ryan, Hirsh and Fisher. A snowbird by Singman, corner shot by Mealy, and finally Singman's long "pot" from midcourt, however, decided the issue. The teams will meet again Thursday at 8 p. m., at Bolling Field.

BOWIE READY FOR RACE MEET

300 Horses Already on Hand for April 1 Session.

WITH 300 horses already quartered and more requests for stalls than can be accommodated, the Bowie Race Track is preparing for its 11-day spring meeting beginning April 1 under auspices of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association.

Superintendent Dick Pending reveals that all of the 1,300 stalls have been reserved for the past month and that as mnay more could be used to advantage, so heavy is the demand from owners of prospective entries. About 200 horses slated to compete in the meet are quartered at Laurel, while others, unable to find stalls at Bowie, will be kept at Pimlico, Marlboro and Benning, to be sent to the meeting the days they race.

Roads leading from Bowie to Washington and Baltimore are reported in first-class condition and ample parking space for autos is available at the track.

Horses now at the track represent the Greentree Stable, Belair Stud, Wheatley Stable, Brandon Stable and Coldstream Stud. The last mentioned plans to enter Marmion, Kentucky Derby candidate, which has filled out considerably during the winter. Trainer Joe Lowe will give Marmion every opportunity during the approaching meeting to prove whether it is advisable to point him for the Blue Grass classic in May. Eighteen other Coldstream horses will contest the numuerous Bowie purses.

Maryland Bowlers In Keen Competition

Hyattsville, Md., March 20.—With four weeks of play remaining in the Prince Georges County Duckpin Association, close races are still in progress in section 2 of the mens' loop and in the women's league.

Collegiates are leading in section 1 by five and a half games, but in section 2 four teams are battling for honors. These are, in order, Washington Suburban Sanitary District Survey, Lustine-Nicholson Motor Co., Sligo and Ross' Old Boys. Only four games separate these teams. Sanitary Survey and Lustine-Nicholsin meet Monday night in a match that should go far toward deciding supremacy.

In the women's loop Chillum is leading Hilltoppers by two and a half games.

to Marlboro territory, but here Binger, Buck and R. Michell offered a stubborn defense, and a mad scramble ensued in the goal area. It was Avon who succeeded in toeing the sphere into the net with his left boot.

Shortly after the equalizing score, soccer was discontinued for the debate between the officers and the referee. The latter won, and, when the game was resumed, half the crowd and Concord's stellar left wing, Herath, decided that the game would not be permitted to be finished and left.

Herath's absence was noticeable in Concord's attack, but the little Germans continued to press and had the Prince Georges County lads plainly in distress. Malloch and Avon worked the ball down the field with about ten minutes to go, and, while the majority of the players from both teams were scrambling for possession of the ball, Beierlin dashed from the side and scored the winning goal.

Erudite Weaver Appears Brightly in Nats' Vista

Special to The Washington Pos.

MOBILE, Ala., March 19.—An unobtrusive figure in the training camp life of the Nats is looming large in the reckoning of Manager Walter Johnson with the opening of the pennant campaign only three weeks distant.

Monte Weaver hasn't even taken the trouble to correct the belief that his name is not Monte. He was christened Montie 25 years ago back in the mountain country when he first saw the light of day one morning when the sun came up in Lansing, N. C., hard by the Virginia line at the foot of the Blue Ridge chain, but in organized baseball where they are free and easy with the handles they have spelled it Monte, and Montie has felt no urge to protest.

Monte or no, the tall, gaunt Weaver boy with the wind-up of a right-handed Lefty Grove is at this writing not only the cream in the coffee of Manager Johnson but the grounds as well—grounds for Johnson't belief that at least one rookie on his pitching staff is ready and able to step into a regular role in a department in which the Nats are sorely in need of strength.

For the mild-mannered Mr. Weaver, who is challenging the silent Mr. Ossie Bluege for the honors as organized baseball's inarticulate champion, came to the Nats from Baltimore with the distinction of being the best among the pitchers in the International League last season, with a record of 21 victories and 11 defeats to prove it.

Weaver's Exhibition Pleases Johnson.

Manager Johnson absorbed a pleasing eyeful last Wednesday when Weaver made his first appearance of the season in a game against Baltimore that confirmed the pilot's belief that the mountain boy is ready to step into a regular pitching role alongside Fred Marberry, Alvin Crowder, Lloyd Brown and Carl Fischer.

In that game Weaver's exhibition was superb. Only the records need be cited to illustrate his effectiveness. Only nine men faced him in the three innings he pitched. Not a ball was hit out of the infield. He was never in a hole and they were breaking their backs against his sweeping curve. He left the game before working up a sweat and Johnson gave him a kindly pat on the back as he reached the bench that spoke volumes in tribute.

The average mental capacity of the Washington Club was boosted several degrees with Weaver's coming. The mountain lad brought with him a Bachelor of Science certificate from Emory and Henry College and a Master of Science degree from the University of Virginia, the reward of majoring in mathematics.

The $25,000 that the Nats paid Baltimore for Weaver's contract was predicated not only upon his record of wins and losses with the Orioles, but upon several personal observations of his work by Manager Johnson and President Clark Griffith, who took advantage of the open dates in 1931 to watch him perform for the Orioles.

Weaver originally was slated to join the Nats in August, but the Orioles were reluctant to release him until fight for the International League pennant was over, and he joined the Nats in time to pitch only one game, against the White Sox, which he started and finished, and won by a score of 6 to 4.

Pitching Recruit Student of Game.

Previous to pitching and winning his first big league start, Weaver had seen only three big league ball games, but this serious-minded lad already has stamped himself a student of baseball, attested by Manager Johnson's terse declaration that "he knows how to pitch."

He knows his mathematics, too, as his master's degree testifies, and inasmuch as his curve is his forte on the mound, it is an appropriate coincidence that Weaver earned his master's degree with a final thesis at the University of Virginia on curves.

Weaver has found it useless, however, to apply his mathematical knowledge of curves to his pitching. He admits his thesis on curves dealt with that specie of curve technically known as the companion to the litnus whose vectorial angle is proportionate to the square of the arc length, a form of curve usually used in railway transition when an infinite radius of curvature is required to take a train from a straight to a curved track.

At this point your correspondent is stumped.

Weaver's record of 21 wins and 11 defeats with the Orioles is no true index to his ability, but a pleasing commentary on his effectiveness. The short fences in the Baltimore park compel a pitcher to be extremely careful and many a ball game is chalked up against his record on the wings of an ordinary pop fly that floats out of the park. That Weaver can win 21 games pitched mostly in such environment is to his credit.

He realizes that the step from the minors to the majors is a high one, but his confidence hasn't failed this mountain boy.

"I expect I'll go pretty good," he drawls. "You've got to pitch to good hitters all the time in the big league, but you've got better support out there behind you. I never did try to strike 'em all out anyway."

The Cards scored six runs in the third inning after Dazzy Vance had two men out. Bottomley hit a home run with two bases filled in this frame and Pepper Martin followed with another. Jim Collins had given the champions a one-run lead in the second inning with a circuit clout. Hack Wilson hit a homer with two on in the seventh inning:

Louisville Scores Six Runs in First Off Friedrich.

tally that Friedrich permitted in the third proved the winning margin for the Colonels.

Again today, the Nats were outhit by the minor leaguers, ten to nine, but Lynn Griffth and Frank Ragland blanked the Colonels in the last six innings in a pleasing exhibition of rookie talent.

Buddy Myer, Sam West and Joe Kuhel each collected a brace of hits, Kuhel slapping the ball hard in three of his five appearances to drive a telling blow in his fight with Joe Judge for the regular first-basing post.

First Two Colonels Up Walk.

The horrible details of Friedrich's first-inning debauch read thusly:

E. Funk walked, Adair walked, Layne doubled to right, scoring Funk. Weis lifted a long foul to Rice and Adair scored from third. Layne advancing. Browne flied to Manush and Layne scored. Olivares beat out a bunt down the first-base line. A Funk grounded to the pitcher's box and Friedrich had the third out in his hands, but tossed wildly to Kuhel, Olivares going to third. Shea walked, filling the bases. Penner walked, forcing home Olivares. E. Funk, batting for the second time, walked, forcing home A. Funk—no kin. Adair walked, forcing home Shea. Sammy West delivered Friedrich from the inquisition by catching Layne's high fly. Two hits, six runs, six walks, one error, one ball game.

MOODY INSTITUTE BIBLE CONFERENCE IS UNDER WAY HERE

Dr. James M. Gray Principal Speaker on Opening Day of Sessions.

TRACES HISTORY OF OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS

Book Is Authentic, Credible and Inspired, He Says; Meetings End Friday.

The first interdenominational Bible conference to be conducted in Washington by the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago opened yesterday at the Fourth Presbyterian Church with addresses by leading Boblical authorities. The conference will continue through Friday.

The principal speaker yesterday was Dr. James M. Gray, president of the Moody Bible Institute, who was heard at both the morning and evening services. The Rev. Archibald R. Wright addressed the conference yesterday afternoon. Dr. Gray will be heard again at the concluding services Friday.

In the opening address yesterday morning Dr. Gray discussed the history of the Bible, presenting irrefutable facts to support the credibility of the Word of God. He took as his subject "The Outposts of the Citadel, or Why We Believe the Bible Will Stand."

Trace Bible's History.

The three outposts of "our citadel," the Bible, Dr. Gray showed, are that it is authentic, it is credible and it is inspired. To prove its authenticity, the speaker traced the Old and New Testaments as far back as their manuscript forms. The history of the Old Testament, he showed, may be traced back for at least three centuries before Christ, while the New Testament is united to the twentieth century by four links, the printed Bible, the manuscripts, the writings of the fathers and the versions.

Answering the query, "How do we know the Bible is true?" Dr. Gray cited the investigation of Dr. Wilson, of Princeton Theological Seminary.

"We do not say that God Himself spoke every word in the Bible," Dr. Gray observed, "nor do we say that every word in the Bible is in itself true, but we do say that every word in the Bible is God's word in the sense that he caused it to be recorded. It does not require scholarship to determine whether the Bible is inspired, or not, or to what extent it is inspired. He who can read the Bible and draw an inference from what he reads is able to determine it."

Image of Invisible God.

In the evening address, Dr. Gray spoke on "What Christ Means to Me." "Christ is the image of the invisible God, that is to say He is Himself the Very God," Dr. Gray told the conference. "He is the creator of all things in Heaven and earth and their maintenance. He is the head of the body, the church.

He is the reconciler of all things unto God, including men who come to God by Him."

The institute of which Dr. Gray is head was founded in 1886 by the famous evangelist, D. L. Moody. Over 60 different denominations are represented in the student body of the institute.

IDLE SCHOLAR QUITS HAVEN; SPURNS FOOD

Dr. Wolter Leaves Gallinger in Face of Ultimatum to Eat or Get Out.

Grimly determined to continue his unemployment protest fast, Dr. Frederick F. Wolter, 57-year-old scholar, walked out of Gallinger Hospital yesterday after the ultimatum "eat or leave" had been issued to him.

Back in his Salvation Army alcove last night, Dr. Wolter told a Post reporter that only death or the proffer of a position worthy of his capabilities would halt his fasting.

He vigorously challenged the opinion of Dr. Oscar Hunter, chief pathologist of George Washington University, that he was a "faker." Dr. Hunter based his conclusion on the finding of segments of starchy foods and vegetable matter in Dr. Wolter's intestines.

Dr. Wolter said that he had "contributed to a new medical discovery," if Dr. Hunter's conclusions were correct. He agreed that the food matter may have been found in his body, but strongly maintained that such results would be obtained in many cases, despite the fact.

The fasting scholar said that he left Gallinger Hospital yesterday afternoon after authorities said that he must either take nourishment or be discharged from treatment.

7,000 VISIT FLOWER EXHIBIT AT OPENING

Amaryllis Show Held Most Magnificent Collection of Colorful Hybrids.

More than 7,000 persons—a record attendance—visited the opening of the ninteenth annual amaryllis show at the Department of Agriculture greenhouses at Fourteenth and B streets northwest throughout yesterday. The exhibit will be open from 9 o'clock every morning until 9 o'clock at night through Easter Monday.

The array of bright red and snowy white hybrids is by far the most magnificent, that has been seen in Washington. The greenhouse in which the floral display is on view presents a solid blanket of blazing color, and all through yesterday an endless stream of persons passed by the brilliant blooms.

An added attraction for visitors to the show this week will be a pelican vine which will be on view for the first time. Resembling the bird from which it takes its name, this odd plant can be seen from 9 o'clock until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The more than 3,000 plants in the amaryllis show have been cultivated from twelve bulbs which were brought from England in 1909.

Son of Anton Lang Accepts G. U. Post

Member of Family Identified With Passion Play to Teach German.

Anton Lang, jr., a member of the family which has become famous throughout Christian lands because of association with the Passion Play of Oberammergau, will join the faculty at Georgetown University next fall as an instructor in German.

Reports that young Lang had been engaged here were confirmed yesterday by President W. Coleman Nevils, of Georgetown, the necessary arrangements having been made about the time Mr. Lang entered Grenoble University in France for advanced study. He is a son of Anton Lang, who has portrayed the role of the "Christus" in the famous Passion Play more often, perhaps, than any other man.

Herr Lang is a graduate of Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass., which he attended from 1926 to 1928. Afterward he returned abroad and took graduate work at Goettingen University. He will return to this country, it was said, in time to take up his professorial duties at Georgetown at the opening of the new term next September.

PURIM CELEBRATION STARTS AT SUNDOWN

"Feast of Lots" Observed by Jews to Commemorate Queen Esther.

At sundown today Jews in every part of the world will begin the one-day celebration of Purim, the Feast of Lots, when it is customary for friends and relatives to exchange gifts and give alms to the needy in commemoration of Queen Esther, a Jewess, and her cousin, Mordecai, who frustrated a plot to exterminate all Jews in the Persian domains 24 centuries ago.

Masquerading and rejoicing is a part of the celebration, and in the synagogues tonight when the biblical Book of Esther, which recounts the story of Purim, is recited, the mention of the name Haman, the arch-villain prime minister to Ahasuerus, king of ancient Persia, who plotted the death of the Jews, the attending celebrants stamp their feet in disapproval.

The traditional delicacy for the day is a triangular cookie, filled with poppy seed, and called a hamantasch. Feasting, plays, games and music are other features of the holiday.

The true significance of Purim today is the celebration of deliverance from an impending catastrophe as an occasion of joy rather than one of malice. Purim restates the right of minorities to differ and upholds the belief that the power of conviction will triumph over forces of prejudice and hatred.

Crucifixion Called Supreme Example

Bishop Freeman Declares Story Is Admired by All World.

"The story of the crucifixion of Christ is the one thing to which the entire world turns in admiration and reverence," Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, declared yesterday afternoon in his sermon at the people's evensong in the Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral.

"The power and magnitude of the act of Christ giving up his life on the cross for mankind grows with each year though it occurred more than nineteen centuries ago," he said.

Bishop Freeman said that the teachings of Christ of unselfishness and willingness to sacrifice for others is a rule which the world needs today. He declared that "the example of Our Lord in the crucifixion was the greatest illustration of His preaching that 'he who shall lose his life for My sake shall find it.' There is not one heroic deed recorded in history which has not fulfilled that teaching of Christ," Bishop Freeman added.

DR. NILES DECLARES JESUS KING OF LOVE IN JERUSALEM VISIT

Devotion to Children and Ill Stressed by Minister of Georgetown Church.

MATERIAL BLESSINGS ARE SOUGHT FOR POOR

Pitied Rich Men Instead of Condemning Them, Hearers Told.

"When Jesus entered the City of Jerusalem on Palm Sunday he came as a King of Love," said Dr. Frank Sergeant Niles, speaking yesterday morning at the Georgetown Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Niles' theme was "The King of Love" and he took his text from the thirty-eighth verse of the nineteenth chapter of Luke, "Blessed be the king that cometh in the name of the Lord: Peace in heaven and Glory in the highest."

"He was a Son of David, a name that had a fascination for Israel," the speaker went on.

"As these people looked back over their checkered history, the reign of David and his son Solomon stood out as an Age of Gold. That had been a time when their land had been free from the foreigner's conquest. It had been a time of great prosperity, when Israel held its head high among the family of nations. But all that was past now," Dr. Niles said.

Was King of Love.

"At Jesus' birth, wise men from the East brought royal gifts. More and more as the days went by the people saw in Him the fulfillment of their ideals. He was every inch a king. He was the King of Love. He loved little children, He took them into His arms and blessed them. He made His sermons so simple that the little children could understand his stories about the kingdom."

"And Jesus loved the poor and those afflicted by the hardships of life. Had He not gone through it all himself? And had He not come to realize that after all poverty may become a blessing, if it only brings us back to God. Although Jesus had some pretty harsh things to say about unequal distribution of property, His love for the poor did not stop with an attempt to bring material blessings within their reach. Jesus was not satisfied until He had brought the wealth of spiritual blessings to rich and to poor alike. For Jesus loved the rich just as much as He loved the poor. He pitied rather than condemned the rich man who had not learned the joy of sharing with his less fortunate neighbor, Dr. Niles continued.

Loved and Healed Sick.

"Jesus loved the sick and healed them gladly. His loving sympathy for those who mourn made life eternal seem real and radiant. They saw in Jesus the King of Love who not only loved them all, but whose royal command was that they should love each other, even as He had loved them. And that was love unto death.

"And now this King of Love, seated upon a humble colt, was coming into the royal City of Jerusalem. His little group of followers increased as the King drew nearer and nearer to the capital city. Palms of victory were waved before Him and He advanced in triumph.

"On that first Palm Sunday, so many years ago, gifts were given to the King of Love. And the first gift that was given was the gift of the animal world. The humble colt gave of its strength.

"And there were those who brought gifts of praise on that first Palm Sunday, and Jesus rejoiced to receive this gift. The scribes and the Pharisees rebuked the children's voices, but not the King.

People Gave Garments.

"And the people gave garments to Jesus on Palm Sunday. They were not cast-off clothes, but they were their very best, their festal robes which they were wearing to the great feast of the passover.

"And now Christ is here to receive your gifts today. I am sure that if he could speak through me as once he spoke through the Apostle Paul, he would say, 'I seek not yours but you,'" Dr. Niles said.

"What shall we give to Jesus? Give Him our strength. Give Him our possessions. Give Him our praise, triumphant in victory. Give Him ourselves," Dr. Niles concluded.

Pastor Urges Return Of Old-Time Religion

World Forgot Christ in Rush for Money, Says Dr. G. E. Schnabel.

"We lost Christ a little while ago," declared the Rev. Dr. George E. Schnabel, preaching last night at the Albright Memorial Evangelical Church.

"We lost sight of the eternal values and, like the prodigal son, we took that portion that we felt belonged to us and started for the top of the world to watch the rest of the world go by. How much of Christ we lost back in 1928 and 1929 is a matter of conjecture, but this is certain, we lost enough of Him in the riot of prosperity to bring in the lowest tide the churches had experienced in several decades. Our whole spiritual life was affected. Every branch of the church felt the chilling atmosphere of materialism," Dr. Schnabel continued.

"During the decade 1920 to 1930 the churches lost ground. We lost millions from our Sunday schools, counting those potential forces of young life that should have been ours. Keep several million children and young people from our public schools and condemn them thus to ignorance and mental darkness, and then turn them loose upon the social order and in one generation you will set the Nation back 50 years.

"But we did just that and worse. We took and kept millions of children and young people from the Sunday schools and churches. The fathers and mothers of our generation condemned them to spiritual ignorance, moral indifference, and the result has been disastrous. Unprecedented delinquency has left a trail of moral wreckage too terrible to contemplate. Before I go over the catalogue of wreckage let us consider what happened back in the decade of prosperity.

"Prosperity, high wages, plenty of work, easy money, jobs for everybody—that was the economic background.

"Shorter hours, more leisure, better roads, general distribution of automobiles, golf for all, bridge for everybody—that was a part of the social background.

"Dust-covered Bibles, prayerless homes, deserted churches without even the semblance of a prayer meeting, spiritual ignorance, a desecrated Lord's Day—that was a part of the religious background.

THE REV. GEORGE E. SCHNABLE.

"What was the result? What would result from such a union and abortive effort to sustain life? This resulted—infidelity brought divorce, broken homes, children with distorted views of life.

"The conceit and big headedness of a generation that lost Christ and forgot God bore fruitage at once. We laughed at religion as a thing past reckoning with. To this generation the fathers became hopeless morons, their conception of life and right living was old-fashioned and useless in a modern age. Their standards of integrity and moral worth were too threadbare to clothe this modern generation.

"We were riding on top of the world, the world could never stop, prosperity was here to stay. The slogan of a 'full dinner pail' was turned into 'a full garage,' but, alas, we discovered that a hungry man can't eat his automobile.

"Things did stop. Our economic world came down upon us. Our social system became a Frankenstein monster. We forgot God. We lost Christ. Here is a slogan for the way back—'Back to God.' Here is the cure for what ails us. Simple, old-fashioned, homely, yet adequate: religion that makes for those simple old-fashioned virtues that graced the lives of our fathers. Joshur 1:8 records this, 'Blessed is that nation whose God is the Lord.'"

OBEDIENCE TO GOD IS SERMON'S TOPIC

Coming of King Described by Rev. C. H. Butler at St. Elizabeths.

"In the ideal state the will of one man is the law and must be obeyed," said the Rev. Charles H. Butler, former pastor of the Columbia Heights Lutheran Church, preaching at St. Elizabeths Hospital yesterday afternoon.

The Rev. Butler was preaching on "The Coming of the King." He continued in part:

"Such an ideal government will be found only in that place in which God's will is the law and all will obey it joyfully.

"Of course, we realize the difficulty with modern kingdoms and governments. They are not so wise and just, merciful and mighty, as they should be, because the rulers are human and reflect usually the character of their people.

"This King differs from all others. He is all wise, all just, all merciful, sympathetic and powerful. He wishes to rule for the benefit of the ruled and not for any self-aggrandizement. He knows the kind of laws mankind needs, and it can be said without fear of contradiction that those who truly join in His triumphant procession and recognize his benign sway are the happiest and noblest of men.

"In God's good time this kingdom will encircle the whole earth. Every knee shall bow down before Him and every tongue shall confess that Jesus is Lord to the glory of God the Father.

"Moreover, the manner of His entering ancient Jerusalem largely proclaims His character. He was peaceful and meek. He rode upon an ass. Those who entered with Him were like Him, in that they were not clad in armor nor did they carry instruments of destruction.

"But they recognized in Him the bringer of salvation, deliverance and freedom from all kind of evil and slavery and sin. In this entrance into the city Jesus makes one grand, final appeal to His beloved countrymen to accept Him as the Messiah. During most of His ministry He withdrew from public notice, retiring into the wilderness and even checking those who would make him a temporal king.

"Now, however, the time for retirement is past and Jesus purposely shows Himself to the people and proclaims Himself their king, appealing to the whole nation to accept their Messiah.

"I am sure it is the desire of every human heart to find a place of peaceful rest when the labors and storms of life are over, indeed even now to learn the secrets of quietness and peace in a sort troubled world. This place is found only in joining the triumphal procession of the Messiah, this secret is learned only through confession of sin and faith in the crucified Saviour."

B'nai B'rith Session Is Opened in Capital

Rosenberg, Dr. Simon and Bloom Are Among Speakers at Bicentennial Program Held at Jewish Community Center.

The fifty-seventh annual convention of the District Grand Lodge, No. 5, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, opened in Washington yesterday with business sessions at the Willard and a Bicentennial program last night at the Jewish Community Center.

The principal speakers last night were Maurice D. Rosenberg, Washington representative of B'nai B'rith; Dr. Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, who presided; William A. Goodhart, president of District Grand Lodge, No. 5; Richard E. Gutstadt, of San Francisco, director of activities of the organization, and Representative Sol Bloom, associate director of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

The program included music by the Jewish Community Center Orchestra under the direction of George Sklar.

Dr. Simon declared that B'nai B'rith faces the task of stiffening the backbone of the American Jew, which has been allowed to grow flabby since the war. He pledged for the development of a finer and higher morale.

Adolf Hitler was branded by Mr. Goodhart as "a demon" whose campaign against the Jewish people is all the more reason for a united stand on the part of the Jewish people. "No self-respecting Jew should be willing to continue to live except under the banner of B'nai B'rith," he declared.

"The time has come for all Jews to take a united stand in evolving definite objectives and a program of work," Mr. Gutstadt said.

Representative Bloom told of the part Jews took in fighting for American independence. He criticized the Jew who is ashamed to admit his faith, and declared that, instead, he should be proud because of the part his people have played in the building of the United States.

Washington's interest in the Jews, evidenced by his determination that they should have their freedom in this country, was discussed by Mr. Rosenberg. He read the letter of Washington to the Jewish people of Newport, R. I., in which the first President expressed the opinion that the Jews should have the same freedom as any one else in the new Nation.

Following the speeches, a play, dealing with the life and activities of Haym Solomon, the Jewish patriot and financier, who helped to finance the American Revolution, was presented by the Dramatic Club of the Jewish Community Center.

A highlight of the convention, which closes tomorrow, will be a banquet at the Willard Hotel tonight. Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, will be the principal speaker.

Baron Wrangel and Gale Debate Communism Merits

"George Washington was leader of an army of revolutionists, a minority in numbers, when he established the American Government on soil formerly owned by Great Britain," said Linn A. E. Gale, president of the Washington Open Forum, in his debate last night at Stoneleigh Court against Baron Paul Wrangel, nephew of Gen. Wrangel, of Russia, on "Can Communism Succeed in Russia?"

"Why communism will succeed in all lands beneath the sun," said Gale. "The United States, with highly developed industries, will have a more efficient communist government than any other country. Communism is the next step in evolution. It would come, anyway, but it will come somewhat sooner if there is an organized, trained minority that is trying to hasten it."

Baron Wrangel insisted that communism is contradictory to human nature and that its establishment in Russia or elsewhere meant the destruction of culture. He claimed that the family had been destroyed in Russia and that countless atrocities had been committed by Bolshevik officials and their agents. Biology, in Baron Wrangel's opinion, is at odds with the contentions of communism. He argued that struggles between individuals and between individual corporations must go on as long as life lasts on the planet.

Rev. Watson Argue Heard By 1,500 in Final Sermon

The first month of the national revival crusade, being conducted under the auspices of the Full Gospel Tabernacle, North Capitol and K streets, closed last night with a final sermon by the Rev. Watson Argue, noted evangelist, before more than 1,500 persons in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple, Thirteenth street and New York avenue northwest.

The Rev. Mr. Argue opened the revival on February 21 and since then has preached each night before capacity crowds. He was assisted by his wife, Mrs. Hazel Argue. In his closing sermon last night—"The Virgin Birth"—the Rev. Mr. Argue called upon his audience to accept Christ as their Savior. "The day of judgment is not far away," he said, "but there is still time for those who have not as yet accepted the Lord."

The Rev. Harry L. Collier, pastor of the Full Gospel Tabernacle, under whose direction the meeting is being held, said it is planned to continue the revival throughout the Bicentennial celebration.
